EUROPE IS really worried about war. The League of Nations considered the quarrel between Russia and Poland, caused by the murder of the Russian Minister, a serious menace to the peace of the world. Let us hope we shall not be dragged into it; we did not shoot that Russian.

IT IS suggested that all the other nations of Europe unite in warning Russia that any blow struck by the Russian government will be resented and punished by all the nations combined.

That MAY frighten Russia, but probably WON'T.

Europe's kings combined against France in her Revolution, and France proceeded to beat them all. The Revolution ultimately produced Napoleon, and the world knows what he did.

ACCUSED CRIES 'I'M SORRY'

Stung by the fiery words of District Attorney Bushnell, who demanded a verdict of first degree murder, 19-year-old Herbert Gleason leaped to his feet today in the prisoner's cage in the Middlesex Superior Courtroom, where his life is at stake, and shouted out a dramatic appeal for mercy in answer to the prosecutor's speech.

His mother, sister and other relatives, as well as the family of the murdered man, James Monagle of Medford, likewise stirred by the district attorney's words, sobbed on benches nearby as Gleason uttered his cry.

"Mr. Bushnell says I'm not sorry," he shouted, excitement almost stifling his speech. "If it doesn't say so on my face, it says so down here."

He pointed with his left hand to his heart.

"I didn't plan this. I was drunk when I did it," he continued. "I—I hardly know yet how it happened."

Although such a plea was unusual, if not unprecedented, no move was made to stop the youth. His action was so unexpected that it took all by surprise. As he finished he slumped into his seat and hung his head.

A recess was declared, after which Judge David F. Dillon was to charge the jury and place the fate of the Jamaica Plain boy in their hands.

Young Gleason's counsel, Attorney John J. Connelly, in his closing arguments for the defense, which was largely a plea for a verdict of second degree murder, said:

"Give him a chance—he's only a kid."

In reply, District Attorney Bushnell declared that the defendant's plea was a confession of guilt.

TENS OF THOUSANDS IN BROOKLYN CHEER LINDY AFTER RECORD FLIGHT

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in evening clothes flew to Washington at dawn today and back to bring his other half "we," the Spirit of St. Louis, to New York.

'The young aviator's stunt was almost as dramatic as his hop-off in the fog for Paris. He had left a Nungesser benefit at the theatre in the early hours and was being taken to an after-theatre dinner when he turned his automobile, without warning anyone, to Mitchel Field and took off with the first streak of dawn at 3:05 a. m. daylight time.

He landed at Bolling Field, Washington, at 4:44, hopped off again for Mitchel Field at 5:30 and was back at his starting point at 7:07.

It was a demonstration of his ideas of the progress of aviation, the ease, safety and convenience with which an experienced flier may do the seemingly impossible.

Before this flight, hope for Lindbergh to bring the Spirit of St. Louis here had been abandoned.

In a brief visit to the Park avenue apartment where he has been staying, Lindbergh doffed his evening clothes, donned street garb and started for Brooklyn where another tremendous reception was given him.

Before leaving Park avenue for Brooklyn Lindbergh gave a brief interview to reporters regarding his flight to and from Washington and plans to reach St. Louis tomorrow.

"I'm not pleased with the way my son behaved," he said. "The motor worked 100 per cent.

"I'm not very tired. I hope to get a good night's sleep tonight, but

ATTY. DANIEL J. DALEY 49, DIES ON VACATION

Attorney Daniel J. Daly of Brookline, one of Boston's best known members of the bar, died suddenly today at Farmington, Me., where he was spending a vacation with his wife.

He was found dead by Mrs. Daley when she went into the sitting room of their house early today. For some time he had been in poor health and was resting to recuperate his natural strength and vigor.

In Democratic party affairs, in Brookline town politics and in the courts of the State, "Dan" Daley was an outstanding figure, yet for all his varied public activities, his chief interest was his family.

Ten children survive him and their most cherished possession will doubtless be the watch their father carried, on which the twelve numerals on the dial were replaced with pictures of the twelve members of his family, including himself and Mrs. Daley.

If he had lived until last Saturday, he would have been fifty years old. A native of Brookline, he attended grammar school in that town, but was forced to go to work at the age

TRACING NUNGESSER 'FLARES' IN CANADA

Quebec, June 16 (A.P.).—Definite steps to clear up rumors, which thus far have proved groundless, that the missing French aviators Nungesser and Coli had been found alive and to determine definitely the source of various flares and distress signals reported north of the Saguenay River, were being taken today by the authorities here.

Searching parties are now reconnoitring the entire district in which the flares were reported to have been seen Sunday night and other sections nearby where other signals also have been observed, the latest being flashes reported in the Lake St. John district coming from the direction of St. Germain township.

It is believed airplanes will have to be called into service to help straighten out the situation, and it is thought likely a government plane will leave for the St. Germain and Begin townships sometime today.

Reports that the French aviators had been found caused much excitement in Quebec and it was several hours before the report could be followed up and found erroneous.

The message was received from Edward Blais, an accountant for Price Brothers at River Bend, by his mother, Mrs. Blais, of this city. The message said Nungesser and Coli had been reported found at noon. At River Bend it was learned there was nothing definite in the San Francisco, June 16 (A. While the delegates heard the Rev. William Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Mark's in the Bouverie, New York, declare that "the New Testament is a book written by a lot of chumps who were thick in the head" the younger generation was paying attention to Rev. Henry Lewis, Ann Arbor rector.

OLD IRONSIDES GOES INTO BOSTON DRYDOCK

With ceremony befitting a craft of her attainments and her inspiration, the U. S. S. Constitution, "Old Ironsides," was warped into drydock today at the Boston Navy Yard for the reconditioning and restoration that will send her back to her berth appearing, to the last rattline, just as she did more than a century and a quarter ago.

Five thousand spectators were in attendance at the Navy Yard during the ceremonies that began at 10:30 with a band concert but that had been preceded by a service in the Old North Church for the frigate's first commander Captain John L. Nicholson.

Secretary Curtis D. Wilbur of the Navy was the chief guest and when he arrived at the yard, his salute of guns included four guns fired from the deck of the historical craft.

As the last echo of the last gun had away, the drydock water gates

SECRETARY WILBUR LAUDS HEARST FOR BOOSTING AVIATION

NAVY HEAD SEES BOOM IN FLYING

Praising William Randolph Hearst for his tenacious advocacy of an extended aviation program and a general development of aeronautics, Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur told the Boston Evening American today that the long non-stop flights have at last turned the nation's eyes toward the air.

The Navy Secretary arrived in the club to take part in the drydocking of "Old Ironsides" at the Boston Navy Yard.

Arriving with his aid, Capt. Halsey Powell, on the Federal Express from Washington, he was met at the South Station by Commander Leland Jordan, aide to Rear-Admiral Andrews, commandant of the District, and by Marine Lieut. F. W. Bennett.

In his interview at the Navy Yard Secretary Wilbur said:

"William Randolph Hearst deserves unstinted praise for his advocacy of the development of aviation. He has been an eternal booster and what aviation needs is considerable boosting and not knocking.

PROVING PLANES SAFE

"There has been a great deal of comment on the practical effect on aviation through Lindbergh's flight. This flight, following Byrds sky trip to the North Pole, and itself quickly followed by Chamberlin's from New York to near Berlin, has demonstrated the reliability of modern aircraft, and particularly of the air-cooled engine developed for us in the United States Navy by the manufacturers of the Wright motors.

"It is believed that these long, sustained flights will tend to give the public that confidence in aviation which, heretofore, has been lacking.

"Such flights tend to show that the multiple-engine plane with a sizable factor of safety, a plane carrying a light load over relatively short distances in good weather, will be a safe means of travel.

AIRWAYS ARE PLANNED.

"Such a plane will be able to meet the exigencies of weather or engine fault by making safe landings in all emergencies.

"Congressional legislation has been secured to authorize the laying out of airways for commercial transportation, and the necessity for such airways is emphasized by Lindbergh's feat."

were opened and the big dock began to fill.

During the wait for level water, that the Constitution might be floated into the dock, Rear Admiral Andrews, commandant of the First Naval District, introduced Bishop Slattery, who offered prayer.

Then the commandant introduced Governor Fuller for a ten-minute address, and the Governor was followed by Secretary Wilbur.

EVIL FORCES AT WORK.

"Invisible forces assailing the Constitution of the United States—the forces which seek to destroy patriotism, seek to impair, to deride or abolish means of national defense are like the microscopic forces eating the hull of 'Old Ironsides' and a menace to national existence," declared Secretary Wilbur, chief speaker of the day.

"Corroding influences will always be at work in the lives of men and the nations. Nations are destroyed by them and the first assault is upon the spiritual values which bind men together in unity of heart and of purpose.

TRIBUTE TO CHILDREN.

"If one were to seek to destroy this nation, he would teach that it is right and not wrong to attack the Constitution. It does not matter on which particular law is under attack. The assault is against the whole. Constant effort can alone overcome the visible and invisible enemies of the government."

Secretary Wilbur said the docking of the Constitution is an appeal to the spiritual forces which unite a nation and he gave credit for the reconstruction of the historic relic to "ten million school children scattered throughout forty-eight States."

Secretary Wilbur's address ended as it was announced that the dock had filled, and all was in readiness.

Stripped of semblance of the immortal craft that wrote history for America during the War of 1812 when she defeated the Guerriere, pride of the British Navy, "Old Ironsides," with masts and shrouds missing, was floated into position, the first braces and wedges placed, and then the workmen took over the task, while 21 guns boomed out a salute.

As a precaution against the hull crumbling under pressure from the dock stays, Lieutenant John A Lord, who has devoted two years to the task of making reconditioning of "Old Ironsides" possible, had the hull girded and propped fore and aft, insuring safety.

Four hundred working days will be required to complete the reconstruction.

NOTED GUESTS THERE.

The dry-docking today was but eight days short of the Constitution's 84th anniversary of her first dry-docking for reconditioning.

On June 24, 1833, with the gallant Captain Isaac Hull, U. S. Navy, who commanded her in the Guerriere battle, on deck, the frigate was put into drydock, then newly completed as the first ship to use the repair dock.

Vice-President Martin Van Buren, afterwards President, and many other distinguished officers and citizens were guests at the ceremony 94 years ago.

Today's guest list was a long list, containing names of noted men, among them John L. Nicholson, 93-year old grandson of the frigate's first commander.

There were present the State officials and mayors from many New England cities, high ranking naval officers, prominent educators, members of Congress.

Among the guests was Vice-Admiral Burrage, who brought Lindbergh, the flier, back to the United States on the cruiser Memphis.

In addition to those named, the guests included:

Miss Laetitia Humphreys, granddaughter of Joshua Humphreys, first Naval Constructor, who was in direct charge of the building of the Constitution; Bishop and Mrs. Slattery; Ex-Mayor James M. Curley; General and Mrs. Preston Brown, General and Mrs. Edwards, Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lowell, Dr. S. W. Stratton, Bishop Lawrence, Congressman A. Piatt Andrew, Ex-Gov. John L. Bates, Sol Bloom, Henry L. Bowles, Ex-Senator Wilmot M. Butler, Mayor Edward W. Quinn, of Cambridge, Mayor John J. Whalen, of Chelsea, Congressman William P. Connery, Alcuin B. Smith, Frederick W. The gold medal is to be presented to Lindbergh, the silver medals to officials of the Chamber, and the bronze medals to guests at the dinner.

nell opened his summation with the words:

"You have the power, but not the right, to return a verdict of something other than guilty of first degree murder."

GETTING "MONEY FOR JANES."

At the close of his address to the jurors, he roared: "They were after money, they were after the few dollars in the till in Mosaile's store. They were snatching food from the mouths of Mosaile's five children—to get 'the jack' to spend on 'Janes.'

"Why, I have the power to reprove the first degree murder part of this indictment," he said, in the course of his argument. "On what grounds could I do it? Because he is under twenty-one?

"That would mean that I would be sending out word to all the dance, drink and jazz-mad young men in this territory to go to places where men are earning their living and hold-up and kill, word that it would be all right to do so, because they would get second degree, life imprisonment and freedom, perhaps, after a while through the aid of some politician.

"Promiscuity among college girls is increasingly great," said Rev. Mr. Lewis. "During my five years at Ann Arbor I have dealt with several thousand young college men and women. Their problems are moral ones, and while their aims are all right, they are badly confused."

DEAD AS THE DODO.

Denominationalism, foreign mission-aries and other things orthodox were given some vigorous treatment by Rev. Mr. Guthrie.

"Denominationalism," he said, "is as dead as the dodo. It has to paint itself red to look interesting. Christianity has lost precious things—things Greek, Egyptian and Roman. Christianity must recover Jesus.

"You can't shoot Christianity into the people of the Orient either with bullets or dogmas.

"I don't believe in foreign missions. I don't expect you to agree with me. I don't want people to agree with me.

"We Christians are about as unchristian as any people on earth. If we realized how unchristian we are we would be profoundly humble. You may ask if I believe in Christianity. That depends on what you mean by Christianity.

CHUMPS WROTE TESTAMENT.

"If you mean the reincarnation of the historical Christ in the mani-god, my answer is yes. But if you mean the scholasticism of the year 250 A. D. or the formalism of the Nicene creed, my answer is no. God never intended anything like that.

The New Testament was written by a lot of chumps who were thick in the head. They were thickheads, but their thickness served Christ, for He was a genius and knew how to make them serve.

"If we continue to behave as we do behave, I don't see any reason why Chinese or any other foreign race should adopt Christianity."

OLD DEADWOOD STAGE 'HELD UP' FOR PRESIDENT

Sioux Game Lodge, South Dakota, June 16 (U.N.S.).—Welcomed to the Black Hills by the cowboys he was told to expect, President Coolidge today started to divide his first day in this rugged Summer White House between contemplation of the wonderful surrounding scenery, a buffalo steak and the lenses of a large battery of movie and still cameras.

Arising about 6 o'clock, the scenery came first, next came the photographs. His engagement with them was the first official appointment of the Summer season.

The buffalo steak will come later—a delectable 10-pound sirloin presented to him at Pierre by Hugh Jaynes, who once did likewise to Theodore Roosevelt. In addition, the game lodge will be graced with seven Chinese pheasants, also Jaynes' gift. Chinese pheasants are out of season, but they were destined for the President and the game warden knew about it.

The ceremonies on the President's arrival were staged to impress the chief executive that he was actually in the West. Following an enthusiastic reception at Rapid City, the party motored over the hills to Hermosa and were there met by 140 cowboys, all sporting the colorful attire of the plains.

A "hold-up" reminiscent of the Deadwood stage coach days—minus, however, the use of gunpowder—was enacted.

PONZI CAUGHT PLAYING ROLE OF SICK MAN

Caught feigning serious illness, Charles Ponzi, serving seven to nine years at State Prison for his fraudulent financial venture, was refused transfer to the prison hospital, where the cots are softer and the food more tasty.

Back at his sewing machine in the underwear knitting room, Ponzi was today after a few days spent in the "sick room," which, according to prison officials, he expected was to be a way-station on the route to the hospital.

"The old stomach ulcer trouble," he said to Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin, prison physician, who examined him in the sick room.

After a thorough survey Dr. McLaughlin pronounced him well.

"Nothing wrong with him," was his report.

Ponzi, in view of his insistence that his stomach bothered him, was told he could stay a while in the sick room, thus escaping work for a time, but getting no favors in the way of table delicacies. This was not to his liking. He asked to be taken back to work.

Only $20,000 now stands between the Harvard Law School Endowment fund and the conditional gift of $100,000 offered by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and this amount is expected to be forthcoming before June 22, six days ahead of the time limit set by Mr. Rockefeller, according to Wilson M. Powell, chairman of the committee. The goal at which the drive for funds was aimed is $3,500,000, which will include $150,000 obtainable from the General Education Board and $1,250,000 provided by the Harvard Corporation. Gifts and pledges from Law School alumni and non-alumni total $1,334,908.

Charlestown Is Ready for Glorious Holiday

With four "night before" banquets, a bonfire on the Sullivan square playground, and "open house" and entertainments in practically all of the clubhouses in the Bunker Hill district, tonight will usher in the 152nd anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Tomorrow, Bunker Hill Day, the principal feature of the celebration will be the military and civic parade in the afternoon, in which it is expected some 5,000 marchers will participate. The officers and crew of the U. S. cruiser Memphis will be in the line of march, along with the 13th Infantry, U. S. A., from Camp Devens; the 9th Coast Artillery, United States Marine Corps, sailors from the U. S. S. Utah, three destroyers and submarines, units from the 182nd Infantry, M. N. G., the 372nd Infantry, Joint Wagon Company, large delegations of members of veteran organizations and their auxiliaries, Gold Star mothers of disabled veterans in automobiles, 32 organizations of Cadets and Boy Scouts, Charlestown Veteran Firemen, Boston fire department with apparatus, Bunker Hill Republican Club, Boston Lodge of Moose and decorated automobiles and floats.

The celebration this year is in the hands of Director of Public Celebrations George H. Johnson and a committee of 19 officers of Charlestown. McLaughlin is chairman of the committee, which is being ably assisted in plans for the ceremonies by Councilor Thomas H. Green, chairman of the reception committee of the second annual "Night Before" banquet, under the auspices of the City of Boston, to be held in the Charlestown Armory.

The district is in holiday array, all of the public buildings and clubhouses and many private residences being decorated with flags and bunting. The Sullivan Square Playground has been transferred into a miniature midway, with flying horses, loop the loops, ferris wheels and side shows. This place will be a mecca tonight and all day tomorrow.

A huge bonfire, some 40 feet high, on the lower end of the playground, will be set off just before midnight. It is expected that Governor Fuller will be born on Seven street.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BROOKLINE RACES AND HUB SOCIETY EVENTS

Latest in Raincoats Put on Exhibit When Downpour Comes at Clyde Park Course

THE "LATEST" THING IN umbrellas and "what's being worn" in the way of raincoats had their innings as perfect outfit for the first day at the races. All because Jupiter Pluvius was a guest—uninvited and most unwelcome—but persistently in evidence nevertheless. "Such a day!" exclaimed Society—as it dashed for umbrellas and wraps at the first pattering drops. And then through a perfect downpour heroically stayed on until, for the final races, the gods were kind and the skies smiled again.

SOCIALLY IT WAS, OF COURSE, a big day. Sartorially, the weather brought about some curious effects. Witness the metamorphosis Henry G. Vaughan, M. F. H. for Norfolk, achieved, from a gray topper with tan raincoat to the most correct of racecourse attire. His spats and topper and gray morning suit, revealed when the raincoat came off, might have graced the Royal Enclosure at Ascot. Likewise, B. Nason Hamlin, who stalked about the stands during the rain enveloped in a pontchlike coat, to emerge when the sun came out in correct Race Day get-up. Mrs. Hamlin was in the Appleton box that was presided over by that genial devotee of the turf, General Francis Appleton, her father.

EVERY BOX HAD AN IMPORTant name on its reservation card—but even the bravest of the brave took shelter from the rain-so parties dissolved and reformed frequently. Mrs. Pierpont Stackpole with Mrs. George Richmond Fearing and Mrs. Charles Boyden, with their spouses, were in one distinctive group, until the rain drove them to cover. Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman and her young son and daughter, Master John and Miss Charlotte, came arrayed beautifully to withstand the elements. They all wore smart plaids, of the rain-shedding sort our cousins across the sea delight in and fashion so excellently.

LARGE HATS PLAYED NO uncertain part in the scheme. The enormous floppy effects served fairly well as umbrellas, in certain instances: Miss Elizabeth Lyman's rose and black straw, and the large hats that swept the shoulders of Miss Jessie Bancroft and her particular friend, Miss Virginia Ayres. Miss Beatrice Howell, one of the girl jockeys who rode so superbly in the two morning races, was out in the afternoon in delicate pastel chiffons and a drooping hat of beige horsehair. The elements were most unkind to her pretty hat, which drooped about her face limply, but nevertheless becomingly.

MRS. HALLAM MOVIUS AND her pretty daughters, Miss Rose Movius, shared a large umbrella (borrowed for the occasion) most successfully. Miss Movius is one of the coming season debutantes, with a host of relatives in high places to make her debutante way a joyous one. Of course Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman and Mrs. Somner Pingree were never far from the paddock, and watched the races with the keenness of experts, for both had husbands riding in several races. Miss Peggy Porter, becomingly turned out in bois de rose, was a brilliant figure in the late afternoon sunshine.

MRS. ALVIN SORTWELL HAD her four small daughters at the Country Club, but at the first indication of rain herded them into the clubhouse, where they were safe and dry. Miss Patricia Bird and her sister, Miss Betty Bird, came through the showers in immaculate fashion, the one in white, the other in black and white. Their frocks and chapeaux were quite untouched, indicating that they, too, sought shelter from the downpour. Not so did those fortunate ones who forsightedly armed themselves against the elements. Mrs. Harris Livermore was one such in a green rubber coat, emerging later in a smart tan tailleur.

MISS LOUISE FESSENDEN wore a coat of the same green, and she, too, appeared in a smart tailleur as soon as the sun came out. Mrs. Nathaniel Farwell Ayer's handsome Race Day rig was a caracul wrap and golden brown straw hat, very becoming. Mrs. Dick Saltonstall added gaiety to the scene, for both morning and afternoon sessions. Her morning attire was orchid, with small white hat. Later she appeared in Chinese red lace with wide black hat. Miss Eloise Weld varied the sartorial scheme pleasantly. She was one of the girl jockeys in the morning races that so delighted a large company, and for the afternoon wore a pretty effect of orange and tan sports frock and wrap.

WHATEVER DISAPPOINTment in the way of weather the afternoon had in store, the morning, with its two races with girl jockeys, was perfect. A brilliant sun and clear sky and a crowd smartest of the smart started the first race day off with eclat. Two races served up any number of thrills, not the least of which was Miss Cornelia Clark's spill in the first race. A plucky girl, Miss Clark. She rides superbly, as a daughter of J. Dudley Clark would. And came out for the afternoon races, apparently none the worse for her experience.

THE MORNING RACES brought out that devoted set that never misses a race or a meet. Mr. and Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Jr., Miss Peggy Bent and her father, Newell Bent (Mr. Bent arranged the morning events), Mrs. Frederick Busk, Mrs. George Lewis, Jr., Mrs. David Maynard, Mrs. Robert Almy, Mrs. Rudolph Weld (Miss Eloise Weld was a jockey), the George Saltonstall West family, and Miss Ruth and Miss Dorothy Neyhart, all were on hand.

MISS BEATRICE HOWELL rode B. Nason Hamlin's horse, "Lindbergh," and made a third in as pretty a finish as any the day furnished. Miss Polly Ledger's "Ironcast," a horse that she herself has trained from his colt days, took first in the second race, while first honors in the first race went to Miss Betty Barrell, tall and blonde daughter of Mrs. Augustus F. Goodwin. Miss Barrell was riding the Goodwin "Ace of Spades." Mrs. Goodwin had her friend, Mrs. William L. Hirst of Philadelphia, with her for the races. Miss Frances Goodwin was a decorative figure at the races, in smart prints frock and wide black hat. The Goodwin household is intensely interested in the races, as Mr. Goodwin is an important Eastern Horse Club member.

AS A PRELUDE TO TOMORrow's big event, the first day of the races, despite the weather, went off with a dash, from the bugle for the Millwood, right through to the last lap of the Myopia, when Hayard Tuckerman's horse, riderless, raced under the tape in the lead. Everyone concerned prays for a perfect day for the holiday to wind up the two days of Country Club racing in a blaze of sunshine and glory.

PAYSON DANA HAS TURN FOR BETTER

An improvement was noticed today in the condition of Payson Dana, Massachusetts Civil Service commissioner, who has been in a serious state at the Faulkner Hospital in Jamaica Plain following a hernia operation several weeks ago.

Until today little hope was held out for the commissioner's recovery, but a turn for the better has given new courage to the six physicians and nurses at the hospital who have been battling to save his life. "His periods of consciousness are longer and he seems brighter," they said.

SUNNY SKIES FOR HOLIDAY

Ware, Mass., June 16 (A.P.)—A sudden drop in the temperature here after midnight developed a record of 32 degrees in several parts of the town at 5 a. m. this morning. A heavy accompanying frost did considerable damage to early truck crops, much of which will have to be replanted.

Sunny skies and favorable temperature for Bunker Hill Day is the official prediction of the local weather bureau, with the added promise of an ideal week-end for holiday trippers.

For yachtsmen, especially those participating in the races off South Boston tomorrow, the winds will blow gentle to moderate north to west.

A light frost covered the lowland meadows in Lexington, Concord and surrounding towns today. An official minimum temperature of 39 degrees was recorded, while in the low places 29 was reported. The frost caused little damage in Middlesex county, although in Plymouth county some damage was done to cranberry bogs.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature; gentle to moderate north to west winds.

How soaking saves my clothes
—and saves me hours of work on washday

EVERY washday I used to scrub the clothes almost threadbare to get them clean. How I hated it!

Then I tried Rinso. It's wonderful in our water—makes such rich, creamy suds. I just put the clothes in these suds—and let them soak overnight.

The next morning my wash had been soaked snowy white! Even the most soiled parts became spotless with just a tiny rub or two.

No more washboards for me—no more hours of exhausting work—I always use Rinso now. And my hands are grateful, too. With Rinso they never get a bit red or washworn.

LINDY HOPS TO WASHINGTON, BACK TO N. Y.

even if I don't, I can fly to St. Louis tomorrow just the same."

The exact time of his hop-off for St. Louis, he said, would not be settled until he had received a wire from there. He has planned tentatively to be there by six o'clock tomorrow night or earlier.

Under good conditions, he said, he could make the trip in nine hours, but another hour would have to be allowed if there were winds.

THANKS POLICE

On the way to Brooklyn he stopped at police headquarters and thanked Commissioner Warren for the police protection given him, then went to the offices of the New York Sun, where he was presented a scroll on which was inscribed an editorial printed while he was over the Atlantic on his way to France.

With a motorcycle escort clearing the way with shrieking sirens, Lindbergh's car then swept away and across Manhattan bridge and was greeted in Brooklyn by the shrill cheers of 150,000 school children spread along the line of march.

Thirty-two hundred police had been assigned to handle the crowds in Brooklyn and they found they had their hands full. Prospect Park was crowded and there was considerable confusion when the grand stands, to which tickets had been issued, were overrun.

One woman was trampled on in the rush for seats where the formal ceremony of welcome was scheduled. She was sent to a hospital.

Lindbergh was accompanied by Grover Whalen of the mayor's committee of welcome, and Richard Blythe, his personal representative.

NEW PAPER STORM

At the Brooklyn end of the bridge they had been joined by Borough President James J. Byrne and Brigadier General George A. Wingate, chairman of the Brooklyn welcome committee.

A storm of ticker tape and other paper fell from nearby buildings. Lindbergh smiled at the crowd with no trace of fatigue.

There were ten automobiles in the parade, Colonel Lindbergh's car being at the head of the line. The parade was preceded by 100 motor cycle policemen and moved along a crowded route at a speed of about 20 miles per hour. Lindbergh waved to the thousands who lined the way and cheered incessantly.

When Colonel Lindbergh arrived over Long Island at 7:42 a. m. today from Washington in his own ship, he dropped to within fifty feet of landing, then rose into the air again to perform thrilling stunts over Roosevelt and Curtiss as well as Mitchell fields.

He sideslipped, zoomed and looped the loop several times. When he had come down, and emerged from his tiny cabin his face was somewhat grime and wind bitten, but he cheerfully posed for photographers and for a few minutes answered questions of reporters.

Grins and Blushes

Over his evening clothes when he took the air he wore a flying suit borrowed from Colonel Foulois, commander of Mitchel Field. Even his helmet and goggles were borrowed.

He was accompanied by Captain Sholto Street in another pursuit plane. On the return trip they were accompanied by Lieutenants Commanders Wick and Miles of the Navy.

Captain Street was 20 minutes later than Lindbergh in landing. Then all went to Colonel Foulois' home in Garden City, changed clothes and stood revealed in all the splendor of his evening garb.

Lindbergh had a breakfast of toast, two cups of coffee and two fried eggs at the commandant's home and then accompanied by Colonel Blythe and a police escort proceeded in an automobile to the Park avenue apartment to prepare for his reception in Brooklyn.

Asked whether he was glad to be reunited with the plane that had carried him to Paris, he replied, "Oh, well," blushed and one of those famous grins spread over his face.

The round trip was made in less than five hours. Lindbergh hopped off from here at 3:03 in a borrowed single-seat army pursuit plane.

Lindbergh arrived at Bolling Field, Washington, at 4:44 a. m. daylight time), leaped from the plane to his beloved "Spirit of St. Louis" and took off again for New York at 5:00.

The spectacular flight also demonstrated the amazing ability of the youthful flier to be without sleep. He had slept until noon yesterday, but from then on the day was a continual whirl of luncheons, receptions and theatre parties for him.

Lindbergh was attending a midnight show at the Roxy Theatre, given as a benefit for the descendants of the missing French flyers, Nungesser and Coli, when he apparently decided on a sudden departure to get his plane which had been left behind in Washington due to engine trouble.

Unknown to most persons in the theatre, Lindbergh, accompanied by Grover Whalen, chairman of the Mayor's committee, and Captain H. R. Blythe, his personal representative, left the theatre at 2 o'clock and entered their automobile, ostensibly to the Park avenue apartment where he has been staying while in New York.

Suddenly ordering the machine turned towards Long Island, Lindbergh, Whalen and Blythe drove to Mitchel Field.

ESCAPES REPORTERS

Newspaper men, who had been trailing Lindbergh since his descent upon the city, and who believed he was returning to Park avenue, were caught unawares when his machine unexpectedly went in an opposite direction. Lindbergh took the wheel of the car himself and soon outdistanced the reporters.

When they saw the machine heading towards the Queensborough Bridge they knew he was bound for one of the flying fields on Long Island and arrived here just as he was about to take off.

Lindbergh greeted them with a broad grin.

"Well," he said, "I gave you the slip that time."

"I'll be back in time to keep all my engagements today," he called. The motor whirred, the plane started down the field and in a few minutes he was out of sight.

Meanwhile, Lindbergh had been expected at a private dinner at a Park avenue home after leaving the theatre. When he failed to appear apologies were offered by a member of the mayor's committee.

FAREWELL TONIGHT

Lindbergh, after his return, prepared to say goodby tonight to the city from which he started four weeks ago on his flight to world acclaim.

An eagerness to arrive in St. Louis on scheduled time caused advancement of a breakfast tomorrow morning, where he was to receive the $25,000 prize awarded by Raymond Orteig for the first New York-Paris air journey.

An embossed and illuminated check, on fine vellum, will be presented the flier at a tea at the Hotel Brevoort at 6 o'clock tonight.

After the formal Brooklyn welcome at Prospect Park, where the Borough medal was added to his many trophies, and a luncheon with the Knights of Columbus, Lindbergh was to proceed to Roosevelt Field, where another great demonstration was to be led by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who gave Lindy letters of introduction to friends in Paris.

After the Ortieg tea, Lindbergh was to be guest of honor at a reception of alumni of the University of Wisconsin, where he was once a student, and his final public appearance was to be at the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce dinner at which he is to receive a gold medal.

Hearst Amazed by Lindy's Own Story of Paris Hop

New York, June 16.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh paid a visit to William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, and for several minutes held the latter spellbound by his modesty and the story of his history-making flight over the Atlantic.

Lindy was accompanied to the Hearst home on Riverside drive by Grover Whalen, Richard H. Blythe and William F. Deegan. As the machine containing the famous aviator and his companions rolled up Broadway, turning west to 72d street and to Riverside drive, the tall blond youth was frequently cheered.

The pride of America was given a hearty welcome by Mr. Hearst, who was an intent listener as Lindy related the story that has made the hearts of kings and queens and just ordinary folks beat faster. The aviator and Mr. Hearst talked for ten minutes and then a luncheon of sandwiches, coffee and tea was served to the party.

Then came a hearty handshake all around and the departure from the famous publisher's home.

BYRD'S FLIGHT TO EUROPE IS POSTPONED

New York, June 16 (A.P.)—With his stripped Fokker monoplane America fueled and provisioned for its projected flight to Paris, Commander Richard E. Byrd today faced a possible delay of several days to his takeoff owing to unfavorable weather conditions.

Atmospheric conditions over the Atlantic could hardly be worse than at present, the Weather Bureau announced.

"There is no chance for a transatlantic flight by Friday," said Forecaster James Scarr, who also declared the outlook after tomorrow was not very good.

Commander Byrd had previously announced he would not attempt the flight until the Weather Bureau had given its approval and indications therefore were the flight would not be made before Saturday and perhaps not until next week.

report, but the general story there was that the aviators had been found safe on the north bank of the Saguenay River.

Hope was rekindled over the telephone and until he had discovered the report was without foundation and it had been learned by Pinet that no forest warden with him had reported. Hope had existed until he had heard the report and thought it correct, and later, when the truth was found out, there was finality. It was erroneous and all optimism in this effort.

Informal reports, however, from sources telling of success appeared to find favor in the minds of officials at the Provincial Forestry service.

FLASHING LIGHT SEEN.

One message was from Eadger Keene, a forestry engineer of Chicoutimi, stating that observers on planes on the Rivers Ferland and Mendeslon had seen flashing lights Tuesday night, which appeared to be floating on the waters of the Peribonka River. The message said investigations had been issued by the observers to report further.

Two were found by another message to A. Ireland from Bagotville stating that George Prudencial, of Roberval, on the Lake, had arrived there, reported seeing a sound like that of motor boats on evening of May 30, the day after the plane left Roberval. Recently plane from La Tuque.

LIFE FOR SLAYER OF ENVOY

Warsaw, Poland, June 16 (A.P.)—Life imprisonment with the loss of civil rights was the sentence pronounced on Boris Kowceda for the assassination of Peter Volkoff, Soviet minister at Warsaw. The court decided, however, to petition the President to commute the sentence to 15 years' servitude.

When the trial opened before a special tribunal the 19-year-old student admitted without hesitation that he killed the Soviet envoy, but said he was not guilty of murder. He described his act as one of revenge for what the Bolshevists had done in Russia.

Keep Your Face Young Looking

When the pores are sluggish and the skin dry and harsh, the face becomes worn and haggard. To remove the shriveled skin and cleanse the pores, use pure mercolized wax. Obtain an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter, and use as directed. The wax absorbs the aged, bloodless, soiled skin, peeling it off a little at a time, until freshness, tan, blackheads all have disappeared. The underneath skin blossoms forth, clear, fresh and youthful, and the face looks more girlish. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty.

Mothers in Fight for Half Fares for School Children

Some of the condemnatory statements, including that of the Mayor, follow:

MAYOR MALCOLM E. NICHOLS—The purpose of the long-existing half-fare law was to encourage education and so lessen the burden upon the parents of children who had to attend schools which were somewhat distant from their homes.

I am unreservedly opposed to any attempt to repeal the provisions of this law and deprive school pupils of this long-established privilege.

The right of the Legislature to enact such a statute, compelling street railways to grant half-fare rates to school pupils, has been attacked without success in our courts.

NO EXTRA EXPENSE

In every instance, the courts have held that it is not unreasonable to compel public utilities, who are a part of the community in which they render service, to assist the public generally and to cooperate in an endeavor to educate the children of the community they serve.

As a matter of fact, I do not believe it will be to the advantage of the street railway companies in the Commonwealth to abolish the half-rate fare, for if the rates are increased, school children will not use the cars at all.

There is no great burden imposed on the street railways by charging half-fares to school children. No more cars are necessary, no more employes are required, and it is a source of revenue they probably would not otherwise have.

MRS. ELIZABETH JOHNSON Holiday street, Dorchester: An increase? It can't be. I have two girls now going to Girls' Latin School, and another one going in the Fall. It doesn't seem right to make education such a burden. I for one, voice my disapproval of any such policy as would make students pay full fares.

MRS. JOHN CASSINS, Holmes avenue, Dorchester: It will be an added drain on the family purse. What with feeding and clothing the growing generation and attempting to give them the necessary background to cope with the industrial life today, an added increase in their expenses would be almost t o much for most of us.

MRS. TIMOTHY BICKEY, Weld Hill street, Forest Hills—An increase in street railways, but a fortune to families would be the loss of the half fare if students are forced to pay the full fare. I'm against it.

MRS. JAMES CALLAHAN, Saratoga street, East Boston—Of course I don't favor any such proposal. It is hard enough to get the half fare to send the boys to the High School of Commerce and keep them looking well, let alone paying the full fare.

MRS. DORA COHEN, Helen street, Dorchester—It will send the children seeking employment. It would mean an added sacrifice on the parts of mothers, most of whom want to see their sons and daughters get the best there is in education.

MRS. FLORA ARAFIT, Commonwealth avenue, Allston—My boy goes to English High. He hopes to go to college. I don't fair to ask an ambitious boy or even his parents to add to the already heavy costs of education.

MRS. ROBERT A. DALL, Leyden street, Orient Heights—When parents have more than one child going to school and riding is necessary, the effect on the pocketbook is more serious than some people imagine. Three of my children will need to use the car checks next year. Here's hoping fares are still in use.

MRS. JOHN H. WILLIAMS, Chestnut Hill avenue, Brookline—Somebody should take up the student cause. They preach education for the masses, and then they reply with a proposed abolition of half fare.

CITY SOLICITOR W. BARTLETT, Newton—This proposition, supposed to be for the relief of the street railways, was not even strongly supported by those for whom the relief was sought. When the hearing opened at the State House these railways did not appear in favor of the proposal.

What it really amounts to is an effort on the part of a Mattapoisett railway to help itself at the expense of inflicting a similar burden of full fares on other towns and cities. This is totally unnecessary. The town of Mattapoisett could supply this aid without interfering with other municipalities.

I spoke in opposition to this measure at the hearing in the State House particularly because I was directed to register the opposition of the Mayor and City Council of Newton.

TODAY

THANK HEAVEN for Lindbergh. He may make this government realize that to be defenceless in the air IS TO BE ABSOLUTELY DEFENCELESS. He told the Chamber of Commerce in New York yesterday: "We don't want war, and the way to avoid it is to be prepared for it. We need greatly enlarged commercial air service, greatly increased air mail service, to develop good pilots. It takes longer to make a pilot than to make a flying machine."

He reminded New York of the disgraceful fact that the richest city in the world has no airport, and must travel far off to Long Island to find one.

AND HE SAID in substance this: "They talk about anti-aircraft guns as a defence against airplanes. A hundred fast planes would soon clear a battleship's decks of its anti-aircraft guns. Then a dozen bombers would sink it. The anti-aircraft guns might, but probably wouldn't, bring down a few pilots, destroy a trifling sum in airplanes. But airplanes would wipe out a $20,000,000 battleship and its great crew of men."

MANY PEOPLE, including the government, must listen to Lindbergh. That's the advantage of climbing to a high place among men. You can MAKE others listen.

MLLE. RENEE VALETTE, eighteen-year-old French girl, crushed with grief, jumped off the Eiffel Tower, 1,000 feet high. Her dress caught thirty five feet down and she was rescued. Powerful publicity and its results will now cure her suicidal thought. Her pictures will be in the newspapers. Many gentlemen will want to marry her. She will realize that this world is interesting, not one to be left in a hurry.

MUCH OF woman's trouble has been caused by her prejudice against her own sex, her lack of mercy for other women that go wrong, her contempt for women generally. Miss Bessie Mack of Chicago, accused of plotting by two large policewomen "beat them up" when they sought to arrest her. She surrendered peaceably to a very small policeman, saying: "No woman can arrest me."

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., whose family has given to education more than any ten other American families combined, says, wisely, that colleges should be supported by students, not depending on gifts. Parents that can afford to pay the full cost of tuition should pay it. For less prosperous students there might be arranged "student loan funds," giving them ten years in which to pay back the cost of education.

Education should be democratic and Mr. Rockefeller's suggestion is a good one.

Either public schools paid for by the public, or universities supported by students and their parents.

OXFORD DECIDES to educate only one woman for every four men. Miss Margery Fry, representing women that want knowledge, says women should be treated "not as women but as human beings." Oxford records probably would show that one earnest woman can absorb as much real education as four average men. The rule against young women may not be as unjust as it seems.

AMERICAN national and private finance are on a big scale. Private concerns will lend you $50,000,000 in less than fifty minutes if you have "collateral." Yesterday, Uncle Sam's cash department beat all records in one day's turnover of two and a half billions. And the gigantic transactions involved caused no money market disturbance.

GERMANS WARN SOVIET TO STOP

powers assembled at Geneva have taken a decided stand against Bolshevist propaganda and entertain "grave misgivings" over the execution of political prisoners in Russia.

The information was conveyed to M. Tchitcherin by Count Brockdorff Rantzau, German ambassador to Russia, and Chancellor Marx when M. Tchitcherin called at the chancellory to bid farewell to Herr Marx prior to departing for Moscow.

In a semi-official communique the German government announced that its action was merely an act of friendship toward Russia and that Germany by no means intended that it should be construed that she was acting as spokesman for the western powers or departing from her policy of neutrality.

It is understood that the warning referred particularly to the activities of the Third International.

The German officials transmitted a delicate warning to Russia against issuing any ultimatum to Poland, as Russia is reported to be preparing to do, stating that this would complicate European affairs.

FIRST AIR TAXIS FOR HUB LINE

An aerial taxi "feeder" line, the first of its kind in the United States, to be established by the Dennison airport of Atlantic to carry passengers from Hyannis to Boston for connection with the Colonial Line planes in time for their daily flights to New York, will be opened July 2, it was announced today.

Harold T. Dennison, sponsor of the project, is now engaged in surveying Hyannis territory for the choice of a suitable field to accommodate the "flying" taxis.

GERMANS AGAIN FETE BELLANCA OCEAN FLIERS

Berlin, June 16 (A.P.).—After two comparatively quiet days at Baden-Baden, Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine are again being feted in honor of their long flight from New York to Germany.

Hanover and Bremen were preparing today to greet them, and they have received numerous invitations from cities and towns anxious to give of their hospitality.

They were given enthusiastic welcome yesterday at Karlsruhe, when they motored there from Baden-Baden and later at Frankfort-on-Main and Frankfort dense crowds turned out to greet them. At Frankfort there was an elaborate dinner in the historic Town Hall in their honor.

From Bremen the fliers are to go to Bremerhaven to meet their wives when they land there from New York, after that they will return to Bremen

LOWDEN URGES FEDERATED FARMERS' CO-OPERATIVES

Binghamton, N. Y., June 16 (A.P.).—Thorough organization to help agricultural situation by means by which farm crops may be worth more than a bumper one was urged today by former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois at the annual meeting of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, Inc.

He advocated nation-wide, federated farmers' co-operative organizations and looked to faith in the proposed Federal Farm Board.

Depicting the perplexity of the farmer when a rich crop brings him less than a poor one, he cited the 1924 corn crop which, according to the Department of Agriculture, he said, was worth about $1,500,000,000 more than that of 1923, although about 20 per cent. smaller.

Sinclair Sells Hub Police Bible for a Copy of 'Oil'

The Boston police vice squad was hoodwinked into buying a copy of the Bible today in the belief it was a copy of Upton Sinclair's banned book "Oil."

Sinclair worked the hoax himself after he had sent a letter to Lieutenant Hines in which he announced that he intended to sell a copy of his book, and in which he invited arrest for so doing.

The sale was made in the Byron House, Beacon Hill, before a crowd that included Lieutenant Hines, Captain Patterson and Patrolman LaCroix.

Holding up a red and yellow-covered book, which the police thought they recognized as "Oil," Sinclair offered it for sale. Patrolman LaCroix stepped forward and paid the price.

Examination revealed that he had merely bought a copy of the Bible in the coverage of "Oil."

GOODWIN LAUDS CRUSADE ON CROSSINGS

"It is about time that somebody stepped in and called a halt to the railroad grade crossing slaughter."

Registrar Frank A. Goodwin made this comment in backing up the demand made by Commissioner of Public Works William F. Williams on the Public Utilities Commission for a new deal whereby the roads would be compelled to install proper safety devices.

PRAISES CAMPAIGN.

At the same time the registrar sounded high praise for the campaign of the Boston Elevated Railway Company to put an end to the crossing killings.

"When you stop to think of it," said the registrar, "it is amazing that the public has stood for this thing as long as it has. Why on some of these branches but four or five trains run a day, yet thousands of automobiles waiting at crossings are forced to take a chance with their lives and properties.

"Instead of the automobiles being compelled to 'stop, look and listen', it's about time the trains took their turn at it."

URGES AN ORDER.

Goodwin declared that the railroads can hardly be trusted to put in adequate safeguards voluntarily, and that the only effective solution is an order compelling them to take such steps.

Commissioner Williams stated that he "had put the responsibility squarely up to the Public Utilities Commission, with the alone his jurisdiction over the roads," and that he "will not be content with evasions."

"I am prepared to help out with additional safety devices on the highways," he said, "but will not expend public money's for this purpose unless the roads are willing to meet us half way."

FOR Acid Stomach

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid as the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this sourimg waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any druggistore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

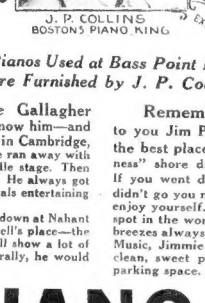
JIMMIE GALLAGHER—"Still Hanging On"

In Person—With His Famous Orchestra (PIANOS FROM J. P. COLLINS)

—At James T. Purcell's New Bass Point House

NAHANT, MASS.

Jimmie has been all over the world—never had to walk back



Right Food Right Service Right Prices

All Pianos Used at Bass Point House Were Furnished by J. P. Collins

Our old friend Jimmie Gallagher needs no introduction. You all know him—and like him. He belongs to us, born in Cambridge, schooled in Roxbury. When a kid he ran away with a circus. Later went on the vaudeville stage. Then into radio, where he made a big hit. He always got a kick out of visiting veterans' hospitals entertaining the boys with his band.

This Summer he will be "hanging on" down at Nahant with his smart orchestra at Jim Purcell's place—the New Bass Point House—where he will show a lot of new stuff in jazz dance music. Naturally, he would like to see you there.

Remember, last year I recommended to you Jim Purcell's New Bass Point House as the best place to go for a real, "honest to goodness" shore dinner, or any other kind of a meal. If you went down you will agree with me—if you didn't go you missed a lot. Go down this season and enjoy yourself. Bass Point, you know, is the coolest spot in the world on a hot Summer's day—refreshing breezes always. Splendid dance floor, plenty of room. Music, Jimmie Gallagher's, and that's the best. A clean, sweet place with prompt service. Plenty of parking space. You will meet the right people there.

Are Workers Better Off Than Small Business Men?

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, June 16.—Which are best off these days, workers, small business men or farmers? How many in every hundred in each class are getting along comfortably financially?

THERE WILL be little dispute, probably, as to which class is faring worst at present. Undoubtedly the percentage of farmers now making a decent living is distinctly the lowest. In all parts of the country, there are some farmers who, of course, are making a reasonable amount of money. One occasionally hears of ranch owners who are quite wealthy; here and there you find large-scale crop producers who have managed to do well; and there are not a few farms cultivated by families that show at least moderately satisfactory results.

B. C. Forbes

But taken by and large, farming unquestionably has not been stable since the sharp deflation which followed the collapse of the post-war boom.

HOW ABOUT owners of small businesses?

Of late there have come more letters of complaints from this class than ever before. These people have been reading constantly about the nation's record-breaking railway activity, building activity, automobile activity, steel activity, of record-breaking sales by chain stores and mail order houses, of equally record-breaking income tax payments, bank clearings, postal receipts, of record-breaking real wages, of record-breaking savings deposits, record-breaking volume of new insurance, record-breaking issues of new securities, record-breaking activity on the New York Stock Exchange, record-breaking prices for railway and industrial stocks and bonds. They cannot understand it. They lament that none of this record-breaking prosperity is coming their way.

ONE MAN writes, for example:

"Those who write about business conditions seem to get their data from large bank and financial institutions, or the very largest department stores, mail order houses and, in short, nothing but the biggest concerns that are always more or less prosperous.

"I wonder if it has ever occurred to you to go to the smaller business people for information? People do business on a big scale now, and even the small people handle more dollars than they ever did before. The farmers do the same, but is it apparent that if a merchant, for instance, who did $20,000 worth of business ten years ago was then making money, it does not follow that he must be making money today because he is doing $200,000 worth of business? The point is that it is not merely the handling of dollars that makes the country prosperous, but the profit on the turnover.

"It is unquestionably a fact that farmers and most small business people, who are numbered by the millions, are not making any profit to speak of on their operations. If you will send out 1,000 or 10,000 questionnaires at random from Dun's or Bradstreet's book, I am sure 900 out 1,000 will be unfavorable replies."

MY OWN GUESS—But it is only a guess—is that the facts are not as black as those painted. Yet I must admit that in my travels I encounter a great many retail merchants, small manufacturers and other business men of modest operations who complain that their profits are disappointingly small.

WHAT OF workers?

There are exceptions, many exceptions, yet I do not believe it can be questioned that never before, in this or in any other country, have so many working-class people enjoyed as comfortable living conditions and as much saving as are enjoyed in the United States today.

• • •

THE TREND, as I see it, is and will be towards larger-scale farming operations, larger-scale business operations, larger numbers of employes and fewer tiny businesses. We may not relish such a prospect but that appears to be the prospect.

BANKS OF BAY STATE SURVIVE 100 YEARS

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

More than a few Bay State banks have survived the "first 100 years," which, according to street tradition, are the hardest. In this column June 9 we mentioned the Provident Institution for Savings in the town of Boston, founded in 1816, as Boston's oldest bank. We did not intend by any means to give the impression that this was the oldest bank in the Bay State. There are, for example, two banks founded in 1803. These are the Merchants National Bank, Newburyport, President William R. Johnson, and the Plymouth National Bank, Plymouth, President Edward R. Beecher.

The Dedham National Bank and the Merrimack National Bank were founded in 1814, when General Scott was commanding the Americans at the Battle of Lundy's Lane, opposite Niagara Falls. A decade earlier, in the very year when Napoleon Bonaparte became Emperor of France, the Pacific National Bank of Nantucket was founded. This bank today has one of the comparatively few women treasurers, Lizzie S. Riddell.

Actuary Joseph S. McCoy of the United States Treasury was quoted as saying he did not believe there were more than 3,000,000 security holders in this country. In this column Feb. 11, we expressed belief that these figures were ridiculously low. Again on March 2 we were able to quote Pliny Jewell, Boston president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, as stating that, while prior to the World War there were probably not more than 200,000 to 300,000 American security holders, the number had grown by leaps and bounds until some estimates ran as high as 15,000,000. We stated this did not seem to be much, if any, too high a figure.

Proof that the higher figures were more nearly correct than the lower has been since forthcoming. Customer Ownership Committee of the National Electric Light Association at Atlantic City stated that in 1926 228 companies raised *$236,000,000 through customer ownership security sales in a population of 85,000,000, adding 248,800 new stockholders. Total of stockholders thus acquired since inception of the plan in 1924 has reached 1,430,000. Their investments have brought to the industry more than $1,100,000,000 of new financing. The movement has become more widespread, a considerably greater number of companies adopting the customer ownership plan. This is, of course, but one of our very many industries.

Vice-President E. G. Buckland, who deserves a great deal of credit for his part in bringing the New Haven Railroad into its present improved position, says, regarding today's Washington report of preliminary negotiations between the United States Treasury and representatives of the New Haven Railroad looking to the liquidation of the road's $87,000,000 debt to the government: "The New Haven Railroad is considering measures with respect to liquidating the indebtedness to the government which have not yet taken definite shape."

All the newspapers lay emphasis on the fact that "New England will have its biggest resort season this Summer." And I want to add that this will be true, in my opinion, and suitable for publication at about this time of the season annually for a great many years to come.

More than 600 dealers, operators and wholesalers attending the 25th annual convention of the New England Coal Dealers' Association in New London, discussed increasing competition and were urged to use newspaper advertising to aid in merchandising. Such advertising was described as the "most economical and efficient way," and coal men were told "the best way to present the facts about a commodity or an industry is by columns of a newspaper."

C. F. HOVEY CO. TO PAY REGULAR DIVIDEND

A regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. will be paid on July 1, 1927, to preferred stockholders of the C. F. Hovey Company of record on June 25, 1927, and the Company's transfer books will be closed from June 24 to June 30, 1927, inclusive.

LAST night we observed the air. Quickly speaking, WBZA and WNAC were close together, but not too close. They did not do a Siamese-twin performance, as the previous WEEI combination had done.

A few telephone calls to friends and radioes around Boston convinced us that several other people had very good radios also. They had no interference from WNAC and WBZA except when one man's wife told Henry to go out and cut the grass, a grown man like you should be ashamed to set there and play with a black box.

Then we turned to WEEI to listen. This broadcaster was near WJZ, but as WJZ of New York was weak, we enjoyed a clear program. WMAQ of Chicago is exactly on the same frequency as the local station. So if a whistle is heard some night, you can be sure you are hearing Chicago. But don't mention this when the telephone is up or you might receive a bill for toll rates to Chicago.

• • •

WEEI easily got the prize for the greatest volume. WNAC suffered badly, being quite sharp and weak. WBZA seemed about the same as normal, which you can take any way you want.

IN a day or two WNAC will be back to normal, as the big antenna was specially erected to fit the old wavelength. As soon as somebody dares to climb up on that flimsy flagpole and brave the squawks of the pigeons, WNAC will feel and sound better.

BILLION PUT IN RAILROADS

American railroads which have been going through a drastic period of recovery since the Armistice have put back into their properties over $1,000,000,000 since 1918, according to an estimate contained in a study of railroads by Jackson & Curtis.

From 1918 to 1925 inclusive, according to this figure, the sum reinvested was approximately $1,000,000,000. The same ratio of reinvestment has continued through 1926 and the first half of 1927.

During the period of 1918-1925, the ratio of debt to total capital rose from 55 per cent. to 57 per cent.

Of all corporate financing since the war to the close of 1926, the total done for American railroads has been less than 10 per cent. of the aggregate for all classes of businesses.

Despite the ruling which sets 5¾ per cent. as a "fair return," the review concludes that this figure should "give a satisfactory return on the stock of the good roads due to the policy of reinvestment of earnings."

COUPE JUST FOR TWO

A CADILLAC MODEL

This two-passenger Coupe with Rumble seat is a distinctive Cadillac model. Its landau top, upper panels, chassis and fenders are in forest green shade, while the lower panels, cream colored.

CADILLAC ADDS PHAETON TYPE

Cadillac Motor Car Company announces the addition of a four-passenger sport phaeton to the La Salle line of body types, Albion Danforth, general manager of the Cadillac Company of Boston, declared today.

"The new model retains all the characteristic lines of the other La Salle types," he said, "but is distinguished by a number of attractive features, among them a special coach-built cowl extending over the tonneau."

This, Danforth points out, virtually gives closed car comfort to rear seat passengers.

The car also has a folding type windshield on the cowl for additional weather protection. Rear and front seats have upholstered folding armrests, and a large spotlight is mounted on the right running board.

Hood and fenders are finished in black, body in gray and wheels in red. This model will be obtainable in a variety of other color combinations.

AUTOIST BEATS EXPRESS TRAIN

Under official observation, "Chick Murray," driving a Whippet touring car, beat the Dixie Flyer in a race from Atlanta, Ga., to Macon, a distance of 82 miles, during the past week.

Murray set off from Atlanta on time with the crack limited train, and covered the 82 miles to Macon in one hour, 53 minutes, 20 seconds, finishing the jump ahead of the fast train. In this hard drive Murray averaged 50 miles an hour in the race with the limited.

Seated beside Murray was Al S. Jones, official observer. At the end of the race he wired the following telegram back to the starting point at Atlanta:

"Chick Murray drove Overland Whippet stock touring car Atlanta to Macon, Georgia, 82 miles in one hour, 53 minutes, 20 seconds. Beat Dixie Flyer."

MANY INSPECT DODGE SEDAN

More than 50,000 persons have inspected the new Dodge Brothers' six-cylinder four-door sedan during the six days it has been on display in New England, according to C. B. Henshaw, Boston Dodge Brothers' dealer.

"The principal Dodge Brothers' display stores have been obliged to keep open until nearly theatre closing time to accommodate visitors," he said today.

"The new six-cylinder four-door sedan more than lives up to the company's established reputation for building comfortable motor cars. Persons who have ridden in the new sedan have been lavish in praises of the comfort of the seats and the beauty of the upholstery.

"Head lining, assist cords and foot rest are among the conveniences. Vanity and smoking sets are unostentatiously but conveniently located. A coat rack is at the proper height. Handles for lowering the rear quarter windows are so placed they do not catch or tear the clothing. Window mouldings and dash board—the latter with its attractive group of instruments under glass—are of metal in walnut finish."

NEW GOODYEAR TIRE FOR ALL WEATHER

That the new Goodyear All-Weather balloon tire will come into more general use during the Summer months was predicted by James Travers, Goodyear dealer at Boston, in announcing the new tire for use in Winter weather have been stressed," he said, "but warm weather is harder on tires.

"The biggest factor in tire wear is internal heat due to the flexing and consequent friction of the cords. This heat gradually takes the life out of the rubber and makes it more vulnerable to road wear or scarp rocks.

"What the motorist wants is a tire that will give the longest wear under the most trying conditions. In Winter, he wants a tire that will stand up under driving over snowy and icy streets. In Summer the tire must be safe on wet streets and roads.

"The new All-Weather Balloon has a carcass both of super-twist, an exclusive Goodyear fabric, and offers many other advantages, including the All-Weather tread which is so designed that wear is slow and even.

"Before the new tire was placed on the market it had been tested under the most severe operating conditions on the Goodyear test fleet for over 6,000,000 miles, and out of over 90 tread designs tested, the new All-Weather Balloon tread was shown to be superior to all others.

"The Summer tire business promises to be even better this year than last," he said.

38 WEST POINT GRADS TO ENTER ARMY AIR CORPS

Washington, June 16 (A.P.).—Thirty-eight of the 203 cadets graduated from the West Point Military academy, have requested service with the air corps, the War Department has announced. Under a department interpretation of the Air Corps Act, commissions cannot be granted in time of peace to any person not a qualified flier and the thirty-eight, therefore, will undergo training before receiving the second lieutenant commissions bestowed upon them at graduation. CHAMBERLIN'S MOTHER TELLS OF STRAIN

By HOMER H. GRUENTHER

"It is wonderful to be the mother of such a wonderful boy," said Mrs. Chamberlin after her son's flight across the Atlantic, but the strain was something terrific; and Father Chamberlin and Clarence's sister echoed these same sentiments.

Ella Mae said that no one will ever know the agony she went through all that Saturday night. She says she awoke all night, with the radio turned on, and hoped and prayed that some definite news might be flashed about her brother.

And in Omaha, where the mother and father went, they sat up until a late hour, studying each press report in an Omaha newspaper office, where they were guests during the flight.

"One of the happiest moments in my life came when a radio broadcaster from Des Moines announced a press report that my brother and Levine had been sighted near France. The report was a little premature, but just the same, I did not know it at the time, and I felt as if he had almost come back to life," said his sister, Mrs. Moffit, the day after the landing.

TERRIBLE FEELING.

"Were you nervous during the flight?" Chamberlin's mother was asked.

"Nervous, why of course I was," she replied. "I never once doubted but what he would make it, but inwardly I had a terrible feeling from early Saturday morning until about noon Sunday, when we were sure that he was actually over land, and that even if he did come down, he would be safe."

But then those newspaper reporters and photographers, they made me almost as nervous as the flight did.

While the mother was not around, Mrs. Moffit said that her mother was the proudest woman in the world. "Mother was always especially proud of Clarence. You know how mothers are over boys, especially when he is an only son."

"All day Monday she kept telling persons that Clarence really was a wonderful aviator, because now he holds two aviation records, one for the longest non-stop flight, and the other for the endurance flight made last month, mother knows all about them now."

When asked if she would like to fly with her son now, Mrs. Chamberlin answered that the first time her son asks her to fly with him she will accept.

ONLY TRAGIC INCIDENT.

He had always wanted his mother to make a flight with him, but she could never get up courage enough. The main reason for this lack of courage was on account of the story which Clarence's father told when he returned from Rantoul Field, Illinois, during the war.

Clarence asked him to make a flight with him, and his dad accepted, and while they were in the air he thought he would show his dad a thing or two about aviation.

He tried banking and loop the loop and tail spinning, and his father almost fell out of the plane. Furthermore, he was sick for a week after he landed, and said "never again."

In all the life of Chamberlin, the only tragic incident came in 1925, when he was in his last smashup, and his companion, Gilleaple, was killed, but Clarence managed to escape with only a bad shakeup. This accident occurred in New York during the International Air Races.

Chamberlin's dad says he is confident that Clarence will not try to make a million out of his latest venture. "You know, Clarence hasn't much money, but when a hero tries to commercialize his courage, he ceases to be a hero, and I know that Clarence is a real hero."

PREVENTED ACCIDENT.

Besides his two record breaking flights, Chamberlin also made a hero out of himself shortly after establishing a new endurance mark, when while he was attempting to take off with his mechanic and two little girls, one of them a daughter of Levine, on a pleasure trip, the landing gear broke, unknown to Chamberlin. Fellow aviators quickly got into their planes and flew around him trying to warn him of the danger.

Finally he sensed what the trouble was. Below he could see a quickly gathering crowd, to see what looked like a sure accident. He flew around the field for an hour, waiting until ambulances and doctors and fire departments were on the scene, and then he decided to do his best in landing.

On this occasion, Chamberlin distinguished himself as a skilful pilot. And as if his full landing gear was attached to his plane, he lit on one wheel, tilted his plane, perfectly, and brought his machine to a dead stop, without the slightest bit of a smashup.

It was this bit of skilful pilot work which really won for him his chance to fly the Atlantic. Before this flight, Levine had selected Bert Acosta, the pilot when the endurance flight record was made, but after that, Acosta withdrew saying that Chamberlin justly deserves the honor to make the Atlantic flight.

PREPARING WELCOME.

So when Chamberlin's plane rose within the shadow of the Woolworth building, and landed on the other side of the Eiffel tower, Denison Iowa, was not wholly surprised.

So ends the story of Clarence Chamberlin, one of the foremost aviators of the day. Many nice things are being said about Clarence now, but the "old home town" is preparing a reception for him, as no town has ever prepared before, to let its best boy know just what it thinks of him.

The people of the town have given his mother a letter to him, and this mother is already en route to London where she will join her son and remain with him until he returns. With her is Bobby, age 6, Chamberlin's only nephew.

RUTH SNYDER GETS PLENTY OF ADVICE

CHAPTER 21.

By RUTH BROWN SYNDER

Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

MY mail here at Sing Sing continues to grow daily. Hundreds of well-meaning men and women are sending me thoughts and advice as well as truly welcome sympathy.

That I have learned my lesson fully, whether I live to profit myself and others by it, is in my own mind absolute.

That I will be a law-abiding and decent citizen to the end of my days is likewise beyond chance of change now.

There is not a more harmless person in the world today than Ruth Snyder.

If it is the intent of justice, law and organized society to reform criminals, that has been accomplished for me already. If it is the purpose of those mighty agencies to punish criminals, that has been accomplished also. But whether the extent of the punishment can be deemed enough is different. Society still demands my life for my crimes.

Society, the great State of New York, at this moment is preparing through its paid brilliant legal officials, a bitter, indignant protest against my appeal, battling with all its resources to bring about the happy conclusion of its first victory in court, snarling and gritting its teeth at my effort to undo that famous triumph and escape with the ashes and tatters of my human life.

ALL WILL BE CONTESTED.

No matter what the merit of any of my claims, they will all be contested. Not one, I don't care what it may be, will the State of New York meet by saying, "Yes, we admit that this is true."

Every claim I put forward they will first try to have thrown out entirely. Failing in that, they will set their machinery grinding to try and pulverize. It is pretty powerful machinery, my brothers and sisters. I who just came through its crushing processes know and realize that. It would take a very hard, big monkey wrench to wreck it.

It should not be that way.

True, I sinned against the State of New York. The State must protect itself and its other children.

But, true, also, that I was born in the State of New York and I am one of its children, also. I was raised in the State of New York and within its borders I was developed to a tragic conclusion. By no measure at least, the world must bear a portion of the responsibility.

But the world refuses to. The moment I am caught, it becomes the world against me.

What did the law or my State do to help me or give me a chance, even during the time when in theory I was "innocent until proven guilty"?

They put me in jail, arrayed all the strength of organised law to batter and shatter every word I dared utter in my own behalf; they connived me with my own codefendant and alleged partner in crime on one side and the entire State of New York in the persons of its prosecuting forces on the other.

CHILD WRITES HER.

One little girl writes me that she has sent a letter to Governor Smith asking him to let me see her. I can go home to my daughter; and she adds that she is expecting to see me in every mail from the Governor, consenting.

It is very sweet of her and gave me a little smile that hurt a bit, too.

The minds and hearts of children, who have not yet done cruel things or had cruel things done to them are beautiful.

They have the true faith, the conviction of good.

But life kicks some of that childish hopefulness out of you as you live along.

On the ruins of my life my daughter will build herself a cathedral of faith and understanding.

She will need it, for the world I leave her in behind me will not be always kind to her because of me.

GOING TO SCHOOL AGAIN.

She writes me that she is going to school again and that the other children, the teachers and the neighbors treat her nicely. Her uncle, my brother, helps her with her math. (That was my job and I should be. Oh, dear.)

She writes me that she goes to church regularly and to Sunday School. That is far more important. That will do her infinitely more good through this puzzling, harrowing panic called life.

Teaching her to believe—that should have been my job above all. But I didn't know, I couldn't see, myself—then.

I am saving all the hopeful and fortifying letters that come to me and will leave them for Lorraine. They should be of strong help to her.

I shall write her a letter, myself, embracing the lessons of my awful experience, in an effort to teach her from the depths of my own misery and failure how to find the true guides through life and profit by her mother's mistakes.

ALL ARGENTINE IN SACCO STRIKE

Buenos Aires, Argentina, June 16 (A.P.)—Wide response was given to the Syndical Union's declaration of a 24-hour general strike throughout Argentina yesterday in protest against the death sentence announced upon Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti convicted of murder in Massachusetts.

Laborers in practically all trades stopped work, but the public services functioned normally. No disturbances were reported. Resolutions in favor of the condemned men were passed at various meetings.

Several small newspapers in Buenos Aires and other cities suspended publication for the day.

Asuncion, Paraguay, June 16 (A.P.).—The 24-hour protest strike for Sacco and Vanzetti was carried out in orderly fashion in the Paraguayan capital, with the adherence of all trades. The newspapers did not publish.

LOIS WILSON TO PLAY OPPOSITE BERT LYTELL

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, June 16.—When Lois Wilson changed her style of dress, bobbed her hair and set out to be a flapper instead of the prim school teacher type, she developed a go-gettingness that has characterized her every action since that day.

For instance, she was negotiating with Cecil De Mille for a job with Producers' Distributors—she didn't like the part they offered her, so she decided not to take it. Within twenty-four hours, she signed with Harry Cohn for a Columbia picture.

Now, here comes the interesting part. Lois plays the leading feminine role in "Alias the Lone Wolf," opposite Bert Lytell. It's a part she likes, and one that will undoubtedly take her into threatres where her pictures have not been shown heretofore. By that, I mean "The Lone Wolf" will be booked in every hamlet and village, as well as in some of the key city theatres. The small towns demand stars as well as story —and in "Alias the Lone Wolf," they will have both.

I LEARNED by the merest chance that "They Knew What They Wanted," which Pola Negri was to have made as her next picture, has been postponed. The Hays organization suggested gently but firmly the play was too censorable.

Famous had no intention, it seems, of filming it as is. Neither did they propose letting it go through with its present title. But the Hays organization, in view of the publicity it received, decided it would not be good policy.

Pola, under ordinary circumstances, might fret about this delay in starting, but when there is a honeymoon in the offing, naturally she is glad to have a vacation of a month.

The news that "They Knew What They Wanted" has been postponed led to the report that "Sadie Thompson," Gloria Swanson's next picture, had also been called off. This has not been verified, however, although it is rumored in Hollywood circles that there is some hitch in the purchase o. the story.

ANYONE will tell you that writing an original scenario and having it accepted, is almost equal to Daniel's feat in the den of lions. That is not such a good simile, either. But, what I mean is, many original scenarios are called but, oh, o few are chosen.

Jaime Martinez Del Rio is one of the lucky ones. He has, in collaboration with Lois Lesson, written "The Lady From Hell," and moreover, he has sold it to Edwin Carewe for his wife, Dolores Del Rio. I am told the script deals with an American girl who is employed as a barker in an amusement park; a sort of female Lullion.'

Who better than Senor Del Rio would know what is suited for his wife? Now comes the surprising part. Dolores' husband has been plotting his fight under a bushel. In his own country he was eager to enter the literary field, and in this country he is about to achieve his ambition.

THERE is rejoicing in the Coogan family. Jackie, son and heir, is to have George Hill as his next director. This is how it happened. Mr. Hill, who is rated high as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director, wrote a story called "Buttons," just meant for a boy Jackie's size.

Irving Thalberg purchased it and now Mr. Hill is being given the job of directing his own story.

Story of Love and Intrigue; A Girl Who Kept Her Head and a Tiger Woman

Lady Meldreth is fascinated by Eddie Wisden, boyish professional in Pinaud's tea dance resort, London. He meets her advances, but subconsciously is shamed because he fears the criticism of his beloved half-sister, Jill, who is a popular actress-dancer. Lord Meldreth, wealthy and powerful, lives apart from his wife, seeking pleasures the world over.

Wisden tells his commonplace mother that Lady Meldreth would marry him if she were free. Jill's road company in difficulties, she fails to send her weekly contribution to her stepmother, and is bitterly denounced.

Lady Meldreth asks her husband for a divorce without publicity. He agrees to consider it.

CHAPTER IV.

JILL WISDEN turned her purse out on the table.

"The show is dead," she declared, in accents that were not in the least dismayed. "Nineteen shillings and a penny halfpenny! I owe you thirty shillings, Mrs. Jellis, and the single fare to London is thirteen and six. I shall have to give you six shillings and leave my box. As soon as ever I can I'll send you the rest, and then you can send off my luggage."

Jill's rural landlady, who had never in her life let to "theatricals" before—it was the first time in ten years that a professional company of any kind had performed in Dewhurst, so remote a village as to be almost off the map—surveyed her lodger in a puzzled way.

"Do you mean you can't pay me, miss?" she asked.

"Our company is no more," explained Jill. "Its fallen to pieces. There isn't enough money to go round or pay anyone. We're all in the same boat—stranded."

"And what about the gentleman with the fur collar bidin' at the 'Rose and Crown'? Wasn't he rich?" Jill laughed.

"Gracious, no. That was Archibald Pitt, the manager. He's gone back to London with his leading lady. They've all gone back to London except me. The others weren't quite so hard up. All the girls had their boys. I haven't."

"Did you know this was comin'?" asked the woman, but her voice was not accusative.

"Oh, I guessed, because we weren't paid in full the week before."

"And that's why you've been goin' short these last few days, stintin' yourself to keep the bill down?"

Jill nodded.

"Naturally. I didn't want to run it up when I knew I might have to be in your debt. I've had quite enough to keep me going."

The kindly woman looked skeptical.

"And where did you have dinner, I'd like to know?" she asked.

"In the forest. I went for a walk and filled up with blackberries. The hedges are full of them."

"Well, now you're goin' to have some tea and an egg—two, if they're small," declared the good soul masterfully. "Never you mind about payin' me till it's convenient, or talk about leavin' your box. You can call it a visit, if you like, for it's been a pleasure to 'ave you, miss, with your singin' ways. We've all took to you, I'm sure. You're too good to be on the stage, and that's a fact. Anyone could see the others were no class, but you're different. [illegible] wonder you ain't a star—with your voice and the clever things you can do with your legs."

"Oh, legs are at a discount in London," Jill declared.

"No, dear, you mustn't get me that tea, really," she went on. "I can't stay. There's a train leaving Brockenhurst at six forty-five arriving at London about nine o'clock. [illegible] must walk there and catch that."

But it's five miles, and it's goin' to rain. You won't get there before dark!"

Jill scanned the heavens. She might be worldly-wise, but she was not weather-learned. The clouds had a scattered look to her, as if they would roll away.

"I don't think it'll come to anything," she said optimistically. "It'll probably hold off. If I stay, ma, dear, it means I shall be in your debt for another whole day. Besides I want to get up to-day especially, because the agents' offices close tomorrow afternoon till Monday, and I must look for work again immediately. Here's six shillings. Yes, please, you've got to take it. And keep my box until I write to you to send it. It's always done by the best landladies." She held out her hand. "And thank you for making me so awfully comfy. I just hate going away owing you. With any luck, you'll have a postal order next week, but if I don't send it, please don't think I have forgotten. It may take me a week to get into another 'shop.'"

She picked up her shabby suitcase and sallied forth, turning back at the tiny white gateway to wave for the last time.

The brightness of her smile did not match the color of the sky. It was leaden.

"It's getitng a bit darker," ran Jill's thoughts. She pursued her way, over the stile and across the meadow, in totally inappropriate shoes, hit the side road and maintained a brisk course. The road seemed to go on and on. She began to wonder if she had taken the right one. There had been two, and she had chosen the one that looked as if it was used more and was likely to lead to the main one again. No sign of it yet. Only the forest each side of her. . . The skies were indigo now, the whole landscape threatening.

Jill looked at her watch. She could scarcely see the figures on the tiny dial. She had been walking for an hour and had not met a soul.

Then she heard footsteps ahead of her. Approaching was a "gentleman of the road." Ruffian was written all over his face. Jill was not afraid of ruffians. In her own words, she had had a comprehensive experience of "brutes."

The tramp stood in her way. He was huge, unshaven, of the predatory, not the unfortunate, type.

EXPERT IS READY FOR 'SKY TALK'

Washington, June 16 (I.N.S.)—Inter-planetary communication is not beyond the range of possibility.

Despite the fact that this fantastic objective of science so far is confined to speculation, Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, chief broadcast engineer of the Radio Corporation of America, today gave it sufficient credence to outline the first message he would send to Mars.

Once the apparatus was set up—either a huge bank of searchlights for a light message or a beam transmitter of thousands of kilowatts power for a radio signal—the procedure would be this:

First would be transmitted a sequence of telegraph dots—then a space—followed by another sequence of dots to attract attention. The signals sent from the terrestial station should be such that if received on another planet the idea of regular control would be conveyed.

WILL AWAIT ANSWER.

"This should be carried on for a long time, ever waiting with receiving apparatus for the answering signal," Goldsmith said.

"My first message would be based on the assumption that geometrical truths are universal and known to any one intelligent enough to get a light or radio message. The right angle triangle is the most simple of the geometrical truths.

"Therefore, I would seek to indicate the right angle triangle in my message—possibly by three dots, a space, four dots, space, five dots—then nine, sixteen and twenty five dots, followed by two sequences of twenty-five dots each, indicating twenty-five as the sum of sixteen.

HOW IT CAN BE DONE.

"If anything similar came back to my earphones, or if anything at all came back, the fact that life exists on the planet, that those beings had communication equipment and intelligence would be established."

Three possibilities for transmitting signals to Venus or Mars were given. The first was in the transmission of light waves; the second by use of radio waves 14 meters or shorter and, third by means of a transmitting station operating on a 20,000 meter wavelength. It being believed that the long waves could be forced through the intervening ionized layer.

Yesterday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

Salient Points of the Bidding

Following West's Spade [illegible] North, holding but two small [illegible] of his partner's Heart suit and a strong seven-card Diamond [illegible] quite properly bids two Diamonds. East [illegible] the probable [illegible] requisite for a first round assist [illegible] Spades and therefore passes. South passes as his Heart suit is not strong enough to rebid and [illegible] content with his partner's Diamond [illegible] West's Spade suit, while [illegible] six cards is not strong enough in [illegible] to warrant its [illegible] when [illegible] partner, particularly when [illegible] a two-suiter. West, therefore, shows his second suit with a bid of three Clubs. From the bidding North [illegible] South with Diamond strength first [illegible] South's Heart suit is not strong enough to rebid, and therefore [illegible] compensation must have been [illegible] Diamonds, and second because South's passing showed negative assistance for Diamonds, therefore North bids three Diamonds. West's showing of both Clubs and Spades permits East to give free support of Spades [illegible] two probable tricks are required to assist a two-suiter. South, holding strong support for his partner's suit, bids four Diamonds. From this point, the bidding is carried around the table until West bids five Spades which North doubles as North seems fairly certain of defeating five Spades, and not at all sure of making six Diamonds.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1. North leads the Ace of Clubs and establishes a ruffing position.

Trick 2. While aware of the danger of Declarer's being void of Hearts, North considers that he would more likely be void of Diamonds in view of South's assist of that suit, and therefore North leads a Heart.

Trick 3. North secures the Club ruff and defeats the contract.

Should North have bid six Diamonds and secured the contract, East's proper opening would have been a trump and this opening would have defeated the contract.

The Last Days of Pompeii — By Bulwer-Lytton

THAT night Apaecides, the brother of Ione, met Arbaces in a grove. Apaecides reviled the Egyptian for his licentious character and declared that he meant to expose him to the populace. Arbaces murdered the young priest. He thought himself alone, but another priest of Isis saw the dastardly act.

AT that moment Glaucus, still maddened by the poison, wandered into the grove. As he bent over the still form of Apaecides, Arbaces struck him down, and cried that he had caught a murderer in the act. A crowd gathered and, believing Glaucus had murdered their priest, threatened him. He was carried off to prison.

ARBACES took advantage of the situation to claim the right as Ione's guardian to take her to his home. He also imprisoned Nydia there. Meanwhile Glaucus was imprisoned and without defenders. Tom Donohue Speaks for Connecticut

By Jack Conway

"I RECEIVED a letter today from my friend, Tom Donohue, chairman of the Connecticut Boxing Commission," said Mr. Boston gaily. "Tom has done more than anybody else to establish the ring game on a firm basis in the great State of Connecticut," resumed the veteran. "He has always been a booster for New England boxers, and was right down front in a ringside seat when Sharkey and Maloney battled in New York.

"In his letter, Tom steps to bat for Connecticut and Nutmeg State boxers. He has refreshed my memory on facts which will stand up under any kind of a cross-examination. Here is Tom's missive:

"'Dear Mr. Boston:

"'In the issue of the Boston Evening American of June 12 I read some figures there, and in my opinion the statement needs correcting, if you will take no offense. You say that two years ago at the Sharkey-Maloney match the gate was $36[illegible] which is a record house for a boxing show in New England. I have claimed that honor for Connecticut since August 27, 192[illegible]. The Kaplan-Herman bout at Waterbury brought $39,080.50, as the records in this office and the Internal Revenue in Hartford will show.

"'This will indicate to you that I read your column very carefully. If you will allow me to make a suggestion, please include in your heavyweight list Jack Delaney, the light heavyweight champion of the world, and Murray Gitlitz of New Haven. This will remind you that Connecticut is a New England State. Although my parents were born in Ireland, I was born in New London, Conn., and naturally am rather proud of the good men in the boxing game in Connecticut, and I think we have a record to be proud of, as we have two world champions in Connecticut, the light heavyweight, Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport and the former featherweight champion, Kid Kaplan, of Meriden.

"'I think one State in having two out of nine is going some—what say you? The reason I call your attention to Gitlitz is on account of the good snow he put on with your sailor friend, Ernie Schaaf, at the Maloney-Sharkey bout. I think the sailor boy knew he was in a fight and received a close decision.

"'With best wishes for you and yours, I am

"'Very truly yours,

"'STATE ATHLETIC COMMISSION

"'By T. E. Donohue, Commissioner.'

Mr. Boston

"Write soon again, Tom. I like to get lively letters for the well known column. Will see you in New York when Sharkey battles Dempsey.

"APPARENTLY my heavyweight list caused considerable excitement in fistic circles. I have received another letter, this one from A. A. Colebrook, in which he calls my attention to the fact I overlooked Lightning Dick Ferguson, erstwhile Honolulu Kid. Ferguson is a member of the 3[illegible]d Infantry, and in the opinion of his buddies wouldn't have much trouble in kayoing most of the 20 New England heavyweight contenders whom I discovered in my search through the local gymnasiums.

"Colebrook shows his bigness of heart by also saying a few kind words for Roy Mitchell, the colored heavyweight from Nova Scotia, who is now making his home in Boston. I agree with Colebrook when he says that Mitchell classes with the best of the big fellows.

"I wouldn't be surprised if a dozen or so huskies were to breeze into the office today and demand:

"'Why didn't you put my name on your heavyweight list?'

"If they are big enough and look as though they might attempt to prove their punching power at the expense of my rather fragile chin, I'll write their names down on my list. Such an act would be very good diplomacy."

COOPER IN LEAD BY 2 STROKES

Johnston Collapses in Today's Play, and He Is Now Ten Strokes Back of Cooper

tional open champion in 1922, is still very much in the fight, for he has a total for 223 for the 54 holes, while Archie Compston, the English giant, is only one shot back of Sarazen.

After leading the field for two days, Harrison "Jimmy" Johnston cracked with an 87 this morning and he has eliminated himself from all chances of succeeding Bobby Jones.

Although there may be many upsets in the final round this afternoon, it now appears as though the title fight will be a free for all, with Cooper, Hagen, Sarazen, Jones and Compston doing the battling.

Oakmont, Pa., June 16 (A.P.)—Slipping badly on the same nine holes that proved so difficult for him yesterday, Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, Minneapolis amateur, took six over par for the outgoing half of his third round today in the national open golf championship, jeopardizing the lead he held at the start with his 147 for the previous two days' play.

Starting at the head of the national open golf championship field today for the final 36-hole chase, Johnston made a sensational getaway.

Johnston sank a 35-foot putt from just off the green for an "eagle" three on the first hole. The Western amateur ace had gotten off with a 4 to his credit for the first two days' play, a stroke ahead of Gene Sarazen.

Johnston, accompanied by James R. Foulis of Hinsdale, Ill., was the first to start the final round of the day over the dew covered links.

On the 363-yard second Johnston's iron found a trap. He was obliged to move the ball two feet from its buried position on his next shot and finally took six, two over par.

The Minnesota amateur took another damaging six on the third, losing his second spot again in the pitching out too strong and missing a four-foot putt.

Jimmy's troubles continued on the fourth. He was forced to place a second shot on the number six fairway after driving to a bunker. His third over the green but [illegible] back to within a foot of the [illegible] and got a par five.

Johnston was 5-4-4 on the next three holes, losing two more strokes to par with an iron shot to a trap on the fifth and a tee shot into sand on the sixth. His par on the seventh was steadier but he missed a short putt and took four on the 253-yard eighth.

Johnston's second shot on the ninth sliced to the rough but he chipped dead and just missed a seven foot putt for a birdie four.

His card:

Johnston:

Hagen Forges Ahead on Outward Nine

Walter Hagen, tied with Harry Cooper for fourth place at 150, hooked his first tee shot of the day into a trap. He got on the fairway but did not reach the green with his third.

He chipped stone dead for the par five. Tom Stevens of Culver City, California, started by missing a short putt for a birdie and also took five.

Hagen was well on the second one with his second and was close enough with his approach putt to get his par four without difficulty.

He failed to reach the green with his second on No. 3 and left himself a 12-foot putt for the par. The ball hung on the lip of the cup and he took five.

PAR ON FOURTH.

Close to the green on the 526-yard fourth in two, he placed his third four feet from the cup and was back on par with the birdie 4.

He pulled his tee shot a few inches from a trap on the fifth, 125 yards from the green and from the rough went into a trap to the right of the green.

He was well out, but with two putts needed five. Hagen reached the 197-yard sixth from the tee and was down in the regulation two putts.

After a good drive on the seventh the "Haig" was too bold with his approach, the ball carrying over the green into a trap. He barely got out and when he had to have two putts for a five he was two over par.

His tee shot found a trap on the 253-yard eighth and came out fifteen feet from the cup. The putt was off the line and he took four, sending him three over par.

Hagen bagged a birdie four at the ninth to make the turn in 39. His second was off the green and it was necessary to cut a gallery restraining rope to give him an avenue of approach to the green. He placed the ball four feet from the cup and ran it down with an ease that was non-chalant. He had been three over par and the birdie reduced it to two for nine holes.

His card:

Out—5 4 5 4 5 5 5 4 4—39

Hagen recovered another of his lost strokes with a birdie three at No. 1[illegible] [illegible] The 11th was [illegible] par [illegible] where his second [illegible] and his approach putt was [illegible].

Hagen [illegible] with a long brassie [illegible] short pitch to the green [illegible] executed in good [illegible] was six feet from the cup [illegible]. His putt was an inch away and he was down in 2 for a par 5 on a hole where eights are easily possible.

MISSES A BIRDIE.

He was on the 161-yard thirteenth from the tee and got the par 3 in two putts, missing a birdie 2 by inches again.

A long drive on the fourteenth was followed by a beauty for the pin but his putt was from a difficult position and he played safe for the par four, getting down from eighteen inches.

Hagen's fine performance up to the fifteenth was marred there by a six on the par four hole. His second shot found a trap and he went from there to another. On finishing in four, he missed a putt and took six.

The 234-yard sixteenth was made in par three without incident, but a chance to get a stroke back was passed up on the seventeenth, where a difficult but not unreasonable putt failed to drop for the par four, five being needed.

A long putt for a birdie at the home green hesitated and decided against dropping, par four being the decision. The 37 in against 39 out gave Hagen 76 and 226 for the fifty-four holes. His card:

Hagen—

In . . 3 4 5 3 4 6 3 5 4—37—76—226

Bobby Jones Up With Leaders at Turn

Bobby Jones, again attracting a tremendous gallery, started an uphill fight for the defense of his championship. He was 53, six strokes away from the leader, for 36 holes.

The Atlanta ace missed a four foot putt for a "birdie" on the first hole and took five.

Jones got an easy par four on the second but was in the rough with his [illegible] the third over [illegible] green and took two putts for [illegible] one over par.

He was just off the green in two on the 526-yard fourth, chipped up [illegible] and sank a five footer for a birdie four.

After a safe four on the fifth, the champion put his tee shot in a trap bordering the 197-yard sixth. He chipped to [illegible] feet of the cup but missed the putt and was one over par again with a four.

[illegible]

Jones missed a putt for a "birdie" [illegible] on the ninth and took five.

His card:

New York, June 16.—For his short stay in the ring against Ruby Goldstein in the ring tourney at the Polo Grounds Sid Terris received $25,000. Goldstein received $22,500. The crowd numbered close to 40,000 and the receipts were about $250,000. The Catholic Boys' Club of Greater New York received 50 per cent. of the net receipts.

Gene Sarazen Goes Out in 40

Gene Sarazen, starting a stroke back of Johnston with 148, was in the traps on each of the first four holes taking 5 5 5 5, two over par. On the fourth he was in twice with his second and third [illegible] exploded to within six feet of the cup and sank [illegible].

Leo Diegel [illegible] for 36 holes, started slipping on the fifth after beating par for the first four holes by a stroke. His wildness cost him a six on the fifth, a four on the sixth and another six on the seventh, where he missed his approach and [illegible].

Sarazen [illegible] over par again on [illegible] taking 40 for his outward nine.

His card:

Sarazen out . 5 5 5 5 5 3 4 4 4—40

Diegel's card:

Diegel out ...4 4 4 5 6 4 6 3 4—40

Coombs Re-elected Exeter Captain

Exeter, N. H., June 16.—Captain Raymond B. Coombs of Kennebunk, Me., has been unanimously re-elected captain of the Exeter nine for 1928. Captain Coombs shares honors with Captain Arthur J. Barry, leader of the 1920 and 1921 nines, in being twice elected captain, these two being the only ones to share the double honor in recent years.

Besides Captain Coombs, only Richard Kimball, first base, and possibly "Jack" Perkins, third, will return next year.

Highlights on Golf Match

Harry Cooper, the sensational Californian, broke out in front at the end of the third round. Light Horse Harry was sitting pretty at the close of the second day, tied with Walter Hagen and only three strokes back of Jimmy Johnston, but he pulled away a couple of strokes from Hagen and now is leading the field.

[illegible]mont Country Club, June 16—[illegible] final round of the United [illegible] open started here this morning [illegible] weather conditions [illegible] the largest gallery that [illegible] witnessed the strife for the title [illegible] by Robert T. Jones, Jr., Atlanta, Ga.

[illegible] Johnston, who was in [illegible] of the field by a stroke at the [illegible] holes, slipped badly this [illegible] on the outward nine, taking [illegible] the turn, and still [illegible] through the last [illegible] strain is beginning to [illegible] the Minnesota champion but [illegible] gamester and will fight it [illegible] final putt.

Walter Hagen, the American [illegible] started off apace to [illegible] the outward holes this [illegible] Johnston slipped badly [illegible] second through the fourth [illegible] opening [illegible] his round [illegible] birdie on the first hole [illegible] Haig caught him at the [illegible] fell off a stroke and then squared matters again at the 4th.

Felix Serafin, from Wilkesbarre, [illegible] and Eddie Murphy, the Windy City pro, were disqualified for not [illegible] at the first tee on time. This verdict was not in any way [illegible] the final outcome of the championship.

As the leaders neared the finish of the third round, excitement ran high. The lead was shifting at the end of practically every hole but one of the first things that became evident was that Jimmy Johnston eased himself out of the running.

After he had played the wrong ball on the 4th hole, George Gadd, who came over from England for the Ryder Cup matches, notified the officials and retired from the championship.

As Harry Cooper, the sensation from the Pacific Coast, who acquired much of his present reputation while located in Texas, is one of the high strung type of golfers, everyone has been predicting that he will "blow," but he has held on exceptionally well under the greatest stress of his career.

Bobby Jones, Jr., has not been up to his usual standard and evidently his slump is causing him some worry, for he is far more irritable than he was at Scioto last season. The gallery which always trails the champion from Georgia has upset the [illegible] many times, while the [illegible] movie fiends make Bobby jumpy and have considerable to do with some of the poor shots Bobby has pulled off.

Archie Compston, the Manchester (England) giant, was sitting right up with the leaders at the end of the third round with his 223. Compston came through with a 76 this morning and was playing as steadily as anyone in the battle.

CLEVELAND MAKES HUB BOW TODAY

Indians to Play Four Games in Three Days; Twin Bill Ordered for Holiday

Jack MacCallister's Cleveland Indians come to Fenway Park today to start a series that will conclude an extremely sorrowful Red Sox stand against the Western clubs. The Indians, who seem to miss Tris Speaker very sadly, get in four games in three days, putting on the regulation holiday double header tomorrow afternoon.

They expect to pick up something here, as the natives have dropped nine out of their last ten and do not seem to feel the home ... sufficiently to do anything about it.

The Indians may be surprised however. The club is not going well, and against disheartened opposition, the Sox can be dangerous. The Carrigans are trying and hitting well in spots. Any time they get a well pitched game, they look like a ball club.

Hal Wiltse, best chucker on the Carrigan staff, was due to start the series. He lost his game against the Browns, and so should be ready to win another. Hal has been grabbing half his starts in this campaign, which is quite a stunt, considering the anchorage of the ...

George Uhle, who was the best in the league a year ago but far from that thus far this season, will probable be selected by Manager MacCallister. By Nick Flatley

FUCHS DECIDES TO TRAIL ALONG WITH BANNY

BOSTON fans generally are applauding Judge Fuchs for his decision to keep Dave Bancroft managing the Braves. There was all the rumor and chatter flying about that so often cause managerial changes in big league ball clubs. But the Tribal owner didn't let it bother him. He brought Banny here, has confidence in him, and will trail along with David.

Nick Flatley

The exciteable fan doesn't realize at all how difficult it is to build a ball club. Takes time and money, and luck. The Braves have had the time, but they haven't had much money, and very little luck. Millionaire clubs, like Giants, Yankees and Pirates, can go out and buy the great minor league players. They shut out competition from weak bankrolls.

The market is cornered and the little fellows have to trail along, developing their own stars, which is the ultimate in tough propositions. The Braves, trying to get three or four regulars, have tossed plenty of money overboard. So have the Red Sox.

The owners have to spread what coin they have too widely. They cannot shoot $100,000 for one possible hero, when they need a flock of the same. They have to trust to luck. The Braves have been improving slowly over the past few years. They have enough stuff now to spurt occasionally, and knock all the good clubs around.

A couple of players who come through will make that spurting a habit. Then the Wigwam will house a ball team. Bill Carrigan is working along similar lines at the Fenway. He doesn't expect to get anywhere in particular for a year or two or five. It isn't done.

Connie Mack, after he sold his great championship team, spent nine dreary years in the cellar. He was admittedly a great manager, and he had money to spend, also. Three years ago he began to toss dollars to the winds in an effort to make a mighty good club a champion outfit. And he hasn't succeeded yet, though his expenditures over the stretch run into the millions.

It's hard to preach patience to Boston fans. They've had some eight years of second division baseball. But they do want, the fair minded of them, Banny to have at least this year with the team that he has built himself.

Tintex tints the silk—lace is untouched!

. . . . Now!—all your faded lace trimmed silk finery—"undies," lingerie, etc.—can be restored to original color and beauty, and without coloring the lace.

. . . . Just ask for Tintex in the Blue Box—it comes in all the pastel shades decreed by Paris. Sprinkle in a basin of water—hot or cold—and "tint as you rinse." The silk takes a beautiful color—but the lace remains the same as when the garment was new.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THIS is the time of year when thousands of mothers are taking their daughters to Europe. One woman also took her son-in-law with her. She wanted to trade him in for a Duke.

SHE cut his wrist the other morning to find out if he had blue blood in his veins.

HE was a nice fellow but the only time he was presented at court he was handcuffed to a sheriff.

SOCIETY claims that a woman can marry a lord and become a lady, but it doesn't say what a man has to do to become a gentleman.

A TITLE is a nice thing to have, but you can't pay your grocery bill with it.

YOU could be married to the Prince of Wales and the butcher would still want his money.

THE average society bud likes to be transplanted in a royal hothouse.

AMERICAN girls fall for dukes, lords and earls because they are gentlemen of leisure. You don't have to go to Europe to find them; there are plenty of men in this country who won't work.

ONE bride went to Paris on her honeymoon. She wouldn't take her husband because she didn't want to spoil the trip.

THE second day she was over there she got a divorce. She thought it would be nice to keep one in the trunk.

IT only cost her five francs. They were having sort of a "Dollar Day" in court.

SHE also got one for a girl friend.

HER chum was single, so she had to get married in order to use it.

ONE woman was perfectly satisfied with her husband but she got a divorce so that the neighbors wouldn't talk.

SHE'D like to have stayed married to him, but she didn't want to appear common.

BESIDES, she figured she had a right to sue her husband; she was on a pleasure trip.

SHE finally became engaged to a baron, but he had to leave her. He couldn't live within her alimony.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---BY HELEN ROWLAND

HEAR now the prayer of the Bridegroom, which he prayeth with all his heart.

O Lord, grant me wisdom and strength in the handling of this woman!

Teach me to understand her heart, that I may not be deceived by false signs, nor my tongue slip into frankness when she desireth flattery and into logic when she yearneth for kisses and sweet lies.

Let not my love weaken my will in the first battle! For I know that the winner of the FIRST decision holdeth the whip-hand all the rest of the way!

Grant me the power to hold onto my latch-key and mine own purse-strings. For a man that surrendereth his pay envelope unto his wife and keepeth his moneys in his wife's name, handeth her the key to his liberty.

Let not my heart soften when she seeketh to beguile me into extravagance. Let her not entice me to squander my moneys, nor lure me to buy a new car which shall keep my nose to the grindstone and my hand in my pocket all the days of my life.

For Florida Winters and Summers in Paris are the Scylla and Charibdis whereon many a man hath been shipwrecked. And he that starteth by "keeping up with the Joneses" may end amongst the borrowers and bankrupts.

Let me not, in a moment of weakness, permit her to dictate my diet, limit my smokes, order the number of my shaves, snub my old friends, select my cravats and coddle me into helplessness. Stay her from electing herself my guardian and my overseer!

For, like unto all men, I am a child at heart and yearn to be "mothered." But to be SMOTHERED, I cannot endure it!

Let me not be tempted to lie to her more than is necessary. For I know that to deceive any woman is an art; but for a man to deceive a woman that LOVETH him is an impossibility! And why shall I waste my breath?

Spare me the missteps and save me from the follies of other husbands, who begin by laying down their liberty and giving their own lives into a strong woman's hands—and end by seeking sympathy and consolation in another woman's arms.

Help me to close mine ears to the counsel of bachelors and single-footers, who are full of sophistry and free advice. For they are boasters NOW; but when they are married they will be wise—and say nothing!

Above all, let me not forget that a new wife is like unto a new motor-car, which is full of surprises, and cannot be mastered by brute strength, but only by subtlety and understanding and eternal vigilance!

O Lord, grant me wisdom in the handling of this woman, who now leadeth me into the House of Bondage, and putteth her brand upon me!

Fobs Return to Fashion as hat ornaments. Quite a few of the most chic tailored hats are trimmed in metal fobs mounted on grosgrain ribbon. These are placed in a diagonal way across the front or side of the high crown, often holding the tucks or creases in place.

A Closer Affinity than ever seems to exist between the slip-on glove and the sheer chiffon hose that it so exactly matches. The glove may be of kid, suede, silk or fabric—what you will—but it is invariably the shade of the stockings with which it is worn.

Another Job Ahead

Transatlantic Air Mail the Next Problem for American Money and Engineering Brains

Is the government's aid to aviation to cease, now that it is getting out of the transcontinental air mail route, turning it over to private contractors for operation?

Everyone agrees that the government did a wonderful job with the air mail. It spent $15,000,000, part of which it got back from air mail postage, and part of which will be returned by the sale of its planes and other assets on July 1. The result of this expenditure was to advance commercial aviation in this country by at least ten years.

There is another job just like this one, just as promising as this one, but at present just as dangerous and uninviting to private initiative as a transcontinental air mail was seven years ago.

That job is the transatlantic air mail.

The United States Government has the money to expend for experiments on airplanes that will be foolproof and as sturdy as to be seaworthy if they must light on the ocean.

The United States Government has the money and engineering brains to build one or more great concrete seadromes to float in midocean, sheltered pools in which the planes can descend in case of storm or accident, with quarters for crews and mechanics.

The engineering genius that built the Panama Canal is not going to fail in the problem of building seadromes, for that problem has no element not well known and already solved in different form.

The United States Government can obtain and develop the rights to construct repair and provisioning facilities, radio beacons and meteorological stations in Quebec, Labrador, Greenland, Iceland and Ireland, and in Newfoundland, the Azores and Spain. Experts seem to think that the Labrador-Greenland-Iceland route is preferable in Winter because of being fog free, and that for the same reason the Newfoundland-Azores-Spain route is preferable in Summer.

Whatever the cost, whatever the method, this is the sort of task to suit the spirit of our people and to test the government's powers.

Its consummation would hasten the air age, promote international trade and friendship and be an eternal monument to the vision of America.

Here is a way to crystallize the enthusiasm for Colonel Lindbergh's great feat.

This is the kind of internationalism that the entire country will support.

Strange Ghost Picture

Something in Us. All Respond to It

This strange picture by Frank Sedlack, an Austrian artist, shows a pale moonlight night, snow on the ground, and the ghost of a once living man floating strangely in the air over the treetops.

No white garment here, no slowly stepping dead man comes back to haunt you. This "ghost" looks like any corpse torn from the grave and tossed into the air.

Yet in spite of us, free as we may be from superstition, or belief in such nonsense, there is something in nearly all of us that responds to this picture, and feels a curious interest in it.

What IS superstition, what has caused belief in ghosts, devils, witches, demons, vampires and all the other hideous creations of morbid imagination?

Scientists tell you that belief in ghosts, in a hereafter and immortality, came from dreams originally.

Our savage ancestors DREAMED and saw in their dreams those that were dead. Awakening they said to themselves and others, "The dead are not REALLY dead. They live in some other world, and I have had them come to visit me in my sleep."

Gradually there came fear of the dead, fear of what might happen AFTER death, and upon that FEAR religion was started in the beginning, and those that managed the religions made their living by preying upon the fears of the others.

That is the rather ingenius scientific explanation, but it does not satisfy you.

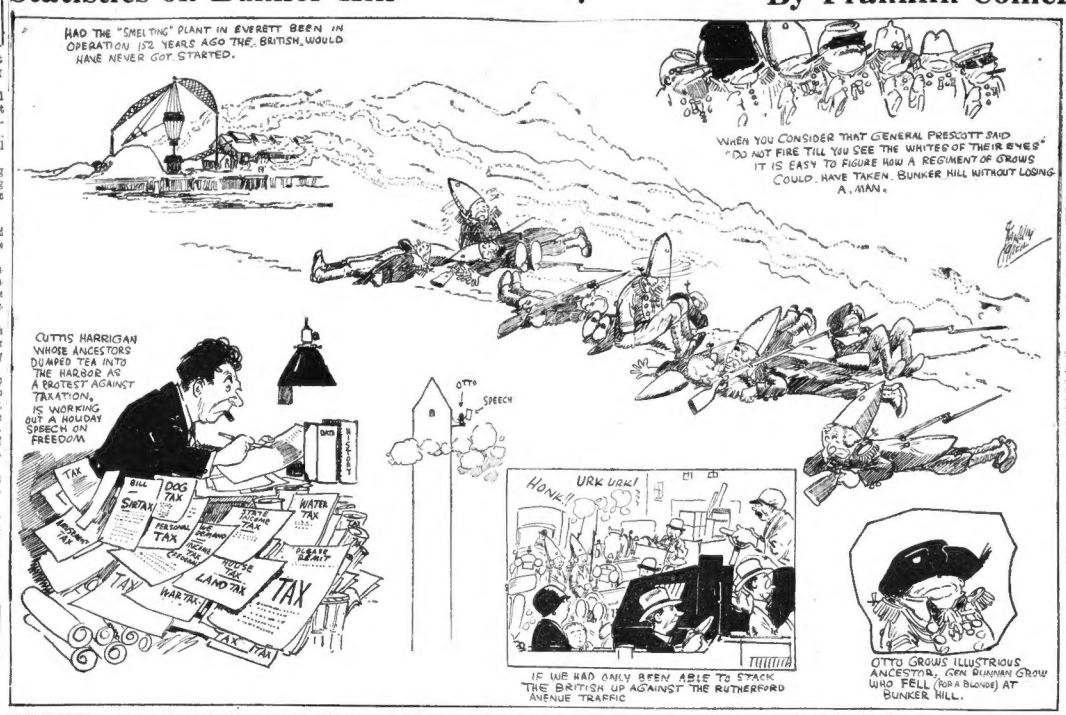
Is there not something in us, APART from what we have been told, apart from our dreams, apart even from religious teaching itself, that makes us feel that there is something strange in death, something that comes after it?

Common sense and modern religion teach us that the dead do NOT come back, but remain peacefully where they are put.

Nevertheless, nine out of ten, left to spend the night in a lonely graveyard, would be more terrified than surprised if a grave should open and some white figure rise.

We are superstitious BY INSTINCT. Our business is to conquer superstition BY INTELLIGENCE.

Statistics on Bunker Hill -:- By Franklin Collier



THE SPOKESMAN IS A HANDY THING

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHETHER the news is accurate or not I do not know. But an item was printed in the press to the effect that the White House spokesman was gone.

If this is true it would be a calamity. If anybody ever needed a spokesman it is C. Coolidge.

As far as that is concerned, I need a spokesman myself, and am seriously thinking of employing one.

I have often gotten into trouble by talking too much and I do not remember any occasion now when I got into difficulty by talking too little. The trouble would have all been obviated by having an efficient spokesman.

When my wife asks me why I have been out so late I could turn loose the spokesman, whose business it would be to invent excuses beyond my capacity.

When somebody sent me manuscripts or books of poems to look over I could simply pass them on to the spokesman who could explain that on account of rush of business, etc., etc.

If I wanted to say anything and not accept the responsibility for it I could try it out through the spokesman. He would be a sort of feeler for the public reaction. It would be a good deal like dipping your hand in the bathtub to see if the water was warm enough, or if it was too hot.

Not only would the spokesman be of great benefit to me in giving out information to various people that had no business to ask for it, but I would enjoy his society. I could unbosom myself as to no one else. He could take the matter that I confided to him and dose it out to the public with expert tact.

Just how I have gotten along without a good spokesman up to the present time, I do not know.

Perhaps, however, I need a silencer more than a spokesman; that is, someone whose business it is to say nothing, more than somebody whose business it is to say something.

This man would be harder to find, as experts in keeping still are much rarer than experts in talking.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

SOME are vexed by all life's dullness, finding nothing fine or rare, restless creatures, worn and jaded by the sameness everywhere; to their thoughts the passing hours are a weary, creeping crew bringing naught of joy or brightness, nothing lovely, nothing new. Others, wiser, glimpse bright wonders ever waiting on their way, find in life a fresh adventure budding with each dawning day, ever something sweet and stirring in the happy moments' flight ,till the hours fleetly journey, brimmed with bliss and filled with light. Blest, indeed, are those who live it with a gallant heart and gay, seeking ever for the gladness that lies waiting on their way, gaining still in strength and courage with the barriers they climb, every day a new adventure on the trackless shores of time!

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

As fit as a fiddle and just as active in getting around as when he was adjutant to the then COLONEL EDWARD L. LOGAN of the 101st Infantry overseas in the World War Tommy Murphy is now devoting his time to boosting the town of Dedham. With the Rev. Robert E. Lee of the Catholic Church in that town Murphy is enthusing the young men how to make the most of themselves in life's battle.

Radio fans must sure be thankful for the development which has made it possible for them to get so much joy out of the air. Yet there is one instance in which they are getting cheated badly and that is in the case of MILDRED RUTH REARDON, the youthful Lynn soprano. This songster's voice is one of the real beautiful things of the air, but the fans are missing a great deal because they cannot see as well as hear her. She is one of the most beautiful of all the radio entertainers.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN K. JOY, JR., of Springfield, is the proud possessor of an autographed photograph of PRESIDENT COOLIDGE. It seems that the representative while in the office of former SENATOR WILLIAM M. BUTLER, noticed the President's picture on the wall and admired it. Mr. Butler asked him if he would like one and Joy said he would. Nothing more was said. Much to Joy's surprise, the coveted photo suddenly popped up in the mail from Washington.

PATROLMAN DENNIS G. MULQUEENEY, the songbird of the Somerville police department, is in great demand at various gatherings in the City of Seven Hills. He was the tenor soloist at the annual concert and ball of the Somerville Police Relief Association, and at other charitable affairs. Recently he appeared at a concert at the Somerville Lodge of Elks, and sang in uniform, having come directly from his route, where he completed a tour of duty, and a theatrical star who was present with his company, congratulated Officer Mulqueeney on his ability and offered him a position with the company at a salary per week triple to what he receives in the police department. "Denny" has put in 21 years tramping the pavements and catching crooks, and he declined the offer preferring to remain at his task, and sing occasionally for charity.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M a little tired of hearing the praise of cities, the boasts of city people and the stereotyped jeers at "hicks."

Is city life in reality such a blessing?

Or do we hypnotize ourselves into thinking that it is? I, myself, have no illusions in this matter.

I DON'T LIKE CITIES AND I DON'T THINK THEY'RE GOOD FOR HUMAN LIFE.

Something happens to me in a city—something stupefying, as if I were slowly but surely being cut off from air.

My senses and emotions lay very thoughts, grow lazy and flabby. I feel satiated—

There's too much of everything—

Too much color—

Too much noise—

Too much speed—

Too much excitement—

Too much competition—

I start by wanting to take it all in and I end by taking in nothing. I'm over-stimulated. Fed up.

I think that is why the average city person is much more stupid, much less alive than the average country person.

Of course, you won't get any city person to admit that. City people fondly believe that they are sparkling, alert and ingenious all pepped up by competition, full of fizz. But in reality they are not. They're full of gestures and wise cracks and smart mannerisms, but they have little individual flavor or punch.

Stale sodas.

But the country—that's different. You don't do as many things in the country, but you do them with more eagerness. There's not as much stimulation, but it hits you harder when it comes. Your nerves and emotions have a chance to rest between jolts. There's more flavor and color and wallop to life.

I lived for many years in a desert place—a silent, colorless wilderness of wheeling suns and circling burning and vast, breathless nights.

People occurred infrequently. When they did occur they were not part of the need. They were individuals.

They had not grown in masses, like the seedlings one sees in the florists' boxes in Spring. Each one had grown alone, with room for his own unique development. Each one was a "character," not merely an animated carcass.

They knew nothing about fads, fashions or finance, and little about current events, but they had an immense sophistication in matters pertaining to their own lives. They had more personality and useful knowledge to the square inch than city folks have to the acre.

"Hicks"?

It's your product of the city street who is the real hick—not the man who rides and runs the range.

I believe that's the right way to live.

Going at it in a tolerably sensible fashion—absorbing eagerly when the chance arises and chewing your cud in between.

Like Abraham Lincoln.

Can you imagine Abraham Lincoln sprouting in a cone-room, furnished apartment with kitchenette? Hoisting up his vitamines on a dumb waiter?!!
